To Vietnam

More Men Going

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, just back from Vietnam, told President Johnson Wednesday more U.S. military men will have to be sent there.

But he foresees no need to call up the reserves.

"I'm not sure how many more troops will have to be sent to the embattled country," McNamara said in telling reporters of his 90-minute White House conference.

He said he is not prepared to say when a decision will be made whether it will be necessary to raise the current authorized strength of 488,000 American troops in Vietnam. He put the total there now at 450,000 to 460,000.

But 20,000 to 30,000 more men probably will be sent to Vietnam in the next 90 days, McNamara said. These will merely fill out the authorized ceiling.

Before any decision is made to raise that ceiling, the defence chief said, there will be consultations with U.S. allies.

Asked if this means the United States is going to ask its allies to increase their troops in Vietnam, McNamara said it means there will be discussions of the troop problems. He said that the United States will be direct in Washington and in the countries involved.

CIVILIAN SUPPORT
He said Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff who attended Wednesday's session, agrees with him about the reserves.

On the manpower problem, the secretary said, he believes there can be some substitution of civilian support forces to better utilize military forces. In that context, he mentioned construction personnel.

$65,000 Statue Toppled at Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — Angry officials at Expo 67's Olympic House Wednesday criticized security forces for what they called a lack of surveillance in the damaging of a valuable Finnish statue.

The 1,400-pound statue of Finnish runner Paavo Nurmi, a 1924 Olympic star, was found Wednesday lying beside its base outside the front door of the $750,000 pavilion. The statue was broken in two places.

A pavilion official said in an interview:

"We have had flags stolen and halyards cut but our complaints to Expo security got no action. So we stopped leaving our flags out at night. This damage to the statue could have been caused by vandals and Expo security seems unable to protect us."

The statue, considered a Finnish national monument, is insured for $65,000 and was loaned by the City of Helsinki for exhibition at Expo.

XYZs of Health May Cause Heart Attack

From AP, UPI

BRISTOL, England — Yes, you can die of a broken heart. And if your last name begins with the letters between S and Z you are twice as likely to get ulcers and three times more prone to heart attacks.

These were the findings in two reports submitted Wednesday to the British Medical Association.

Dr. C. Murray Parkes, of the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations, said a study in which he had been involved shows a relationship between bereavement and heart disease. Out of 4,511 men who had lost their wives, 241 died within six months of the bereavement — 77 from coronary thrombosis or arteriosclerotic heart disease, the research psychiatrist said.

A doctor whose last name begins with W reported on "alphabetic neurosis," which, he said, was due to the strain of waiting for your name to be called. The amount of neurosis in the S-Z group, Dr. Trevor Weston said, is 50 per cent higher than the A-R block.

"It is clear that the strain of all this waiting for your name to be reached — of always being last — renders us more liable to become morose and introspective," the hospital consultant said.

Weston said the neurosis shortens life for the group by 11 years compared with the others.

Violence Grows In Hong Kong On Fourth Night

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communist mobs raged through Hong Kong Wednesday night, burning buses and cars and attacking police. Police fought back with shotguns and tear gas, killing one rioter and wounding several others.

It was the most violent outbreak in four days of anti-government rioting in this British colony on the doorstep of China.

Police and firemen were stoned, windows were smashed and stores looted early today in an outbreak of racial violence in New Jersey's largest city.

The disorder was believed triggered when Negroes gathered outside the fourth precinct house to protest the alleged manhandling of a Negro arrested for assaulting an officer.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John Lindsay spent an hour touring Harlem Wednesday and made a special point of inspecting the streets and gutters for trash.

Key City

Nigeria Claims Victory

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's federal government announced Wednesday night capture of the key eastern town of Ogoja and said it killed 2,000 troops in the battle against the self-proclaimed Biafra Republic.

The announcement said three battalions of secessionist troops were wiped out. Ogoja is the capital of Ogoja province. Federal forces earlier claimed the capture of several places in the northern part of Ogoja province.

Federal sources here Wednesday indicated the federal army's northern battalions were staging an all-out effort to capture Nsukka, strategically situated 41 miles north of the breakaway eastern region's capital of Enugu.

The secessionist Radio Biafra, heard here, confirmed that Nsukka was at the centre of continued bitter fighting.

It conceded an initial setback for secessionist forces but claimed to have contained a Nigerian Army onslaught launched against Nsukka Monday.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — State police using nightsticks and riot dogs moved in on a crowd of 1,000 jeering, bottle-throwing demonstrators Wednesday night trying to clear them from the front gates of the strikebound Newport News shipbuilding and Drydock Co.

Bottles flew through the air and firecrackers exploded as the troops and six snarling police dogs forced the crowd to break into several side streets leading to the main entrance to the world's largest privately owned shipyard.

One man fell through a plate glass window in a small store, but he jumped up and ran away, blood streaming from small cuts. Several persons were hit by nightsticks in the second night of violence at the shipyard.

The trouble started when the crowd began advancing on the helmeted troops after a loudspeaker warned them to "disperse by order of the state police."

Shipyard Mob Routed

Israel Wednesday night faced the threat of censure and Security Council-imposed sanctions as the United Nations mounted new pressure to force her to give up the Old City of Jerusalem.

In a strong attack on the Israeli position, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko urged that the council apply sanctions "to liquidate Israeli aggression," and pledged Soviet support for such a measure.

On the Suez Canal, artillery and tanks of Egypt and Israel blazed away at each other after a night naval battle during which the Israelis claimed they sank two Egyptian torpedo boats.

SENT ORDERS
In New York, Secretary-General U Thant told the Security Council he has sent orders for the posting "without delay" of as many UN military observers as possible along the canal.

It appeared doubtful whether Egypt would accept Canadian officers from the present truce staff, in view of Cairo's expressed displeasure with Canada's views on the Middle East. (See story, Page 8.)

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban met Wednesday night's challenge by declaring in the General Assembly that his government would "pursue a serene and patient dialogue" to ensure that Jerusalem remained unified and that access to the holy places is open to all faiths.

DOMINANT ISSUE
Israel's takeover of the city, formerly divided into Israeli and Jordanian sectors, was the dominant issue as the assembly resumed its emergency debate after a week's recess for private consultations among delegations.

Pakistan, which spearheaded a resolution last week declaring invalid Israel measures for absorbing Jerusalem and calling for their annulment, revived the question Wednesday with the submission of a further draft.

This would have the assembly deplore Israel's failure to heed the assembly's appeal and put the matter before the Security Council.

'I'll Die Greek!'

Greece Purges 'Anti' Actress

NEW YORK (AP) — Greece's military dictatorship snatched away actress Melina Mercouri's citizenship and Greek property Wednesday, charging her with "anti-national" activities.

"I was born Greek; I will die Greek," Miss Mercouri responded, angrily branding the government "fascist."

"I will speak out loud and clear. I will talk to the people. I will sing songs they are not allowed to sing. I will help them be free again."

The announcement that Miss Mercouri and eight others had lost their citizenship and property was made in Athens by Brig. Stylianos Patakas, interior minister.

The other eight included politicians, writers and a radio announcer, all of whom fled the country after the April 21 military coup.

Much of Miss Mercouri's "anti-national" activity was the criticism she directed at the military junta against some Greek songs and plays. She was forbidden to perform the works of Aristophanes, she said, or to sing the songs of Miltos Thodorakis, composer of Zorba the Greek.

The loss of her citizenship, she said, cleared the way for her to speak out with complete freedom.

Miss Mercouri, 42, appeared shocked and upset as she told a news conference that she wanted the military junta out of power but did not want civil war.

Sniper Case

Mental Review Advised

VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday said Arthur John Towell, 35, was responsible for two sniper deaths last Thursday and then recommended wide legislative revisions to prevent a repetition of the tragedy. (See also Page 22.)

The jury recommended:

• A review of criminal procedures for mentally ill people in connection with physicians following up cases.

• Legislation for a medical review board to which doctors and social workers could refer all instances of mental illness.

• Powers for police to reduce applications for handgun licenses and to revoke existing permits with a reasonable right for appeal.

Towell is scheduled to appear in magistrate's court today on two charges of capital murder in the deaths of David and Marlene Webster and two charges of attempted murder.

Jordan Excluded From Arab Meet

BEIRUT (UPI) — The four most warlike Arab states will get together for a summit conference in Cairo today, and pointedly exclude the kingdom of Jordan from the meeting.

Jordan's King Hussein has been pleading ever since the Middle East war for summit talks by the rulers of all the Arab countries.

But the authoritative Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said Wednesday that a meeting would be held in the Egyptian capital of the presidents of Syria, Egypt, Iraq and Algeria.

Law 'Contradicts' Mayor's Words

HUGH THE BOLD: Mayor Stephen must have the most flexible reasoning power of any public official.

Not long ago he was telling a group of young people to guard their freedom. Now he has switched horses in the case of the three youths charged as vagrants under section 164 (a) of the Criminal Code of Canada.

He says that last year "some 30 persons were prosecuted under this law in Victoria and adds "so far as I can recall there was not a whisper of protest from anybody."

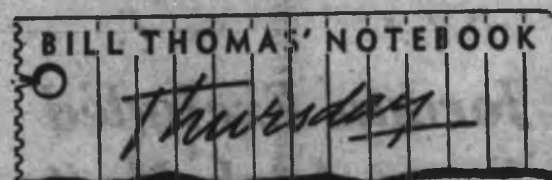

This catch-all law has sections from A to E and covers begging, prostitutes, living by gaming or crime, and sexual offenders loitering near schools.

The young men in this case were said to have no apparent means of support.

There would seem to be no reason why each and every applicant for social assistance should not be charged under this section.

It would seem to me that the mayor suffers from the same "strange perversion of logic" that he charges to others.

He also said in his statement "Once we settle for the premise that laws we do not like may be broken, we are, I'm afraid, on the verge of social chaos because each person then becomes free to observe or violate the laws according to his personal predictions.

"Therefore, regardless of whether the vagrancy law is a just and wise law or not, so long as it forms part of our statutes and so long as I am chief magistrate of the city, my duty is clearly to see that it is enforced until such time as it is amended or abandoned by due legislative process."

This is a fine speech if only it meant anything. Mayor Stephen is totally inconsistent in his desire to uphold the law.

If someone down at City Hall can find a copy of the Criminal Code for his worship he might care to look up the Lord's Day Act.

Perhaps his worship would care to see that Section 10 is enforced. It says, "It is not lawful for any person to bring into Canada for sale or distribution, or to sell or distribute within Canada on the Lord's Day any foreign newspaper or publication classified as a newspaper."

It would be interesting to see what reaction there is at the polls if his worship shuts down the small corner stores that sell things on Sundays.

There have been a number of events in city operated premises that might run foul of Section 6 of the act. This covers games and performances where admittance is charged.

If Mayor Stephen's image as the White Knight is to be preserved then he should do what is clearly his expressed duty.

The fact is that there is a measure of public tolerance and common sense in the application of most laws that seems to have eluded his worship.

Section 164 (a) would seem to come into this category. If logic is not to be perverted then it must be consistent.

FULL MARKS: A posse of teachers is in town to mark exam papers for the department of education. Sometimes the indignity is lightened by the quiet observations of the youngsters in their essays. Here is a prime example, from a paper on the shape of things to come. The writer says "... in the future babies may be born in test tubes, but this is highly unlikely as there will be so much leisure time."

Rheumatic Fever Serious, Immediate Action Advised

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: A doctor says my 14-year-old granddaughter has acute rheumatic fever but I just can't believe him. I want my daughter-in-law to take her to another doctor but she refuses. Please tell me all the symptoms of it. And I would like to know to stop worrying. — MRS. W.D.

I'll tell you how to stop worrying tomorrow. Today I'll tell you why you SHOULD worry.

Rheumatic fever is a consequence of streptococcus infection, although there is good reason to think that other factors are involved. Not every case of tonsillitis or strep throat turns into rheumatic fever, but we never seem to find rheumatic fever without strep throat preceding it.

Fever, inflamed painful joints, variations in heart action, are common symptoms.

Your Good Health

All may not be present, but when enough are present to show without question that rheumatic fever has developed, it's time to put that child to bed and start treatment, not talk of taking her to another doctor.

Rest and medication, if properly used, can limit or, if possible, prevent heart damage.

Not every case of rheumatic fever damages the heart, but it happens often enough to make rheumatic fever one of the important causes of heart disease in later life.

Indeed, heart damage can result not only from severe, acute attacks but also from mild rheumatic fever.

This heart damage is the thing we fear most in rheumatic fever, and repeated attacks can make the heart damage progressively worse.

CAN BE PAINFUL.

An attack of rheumatic fever can be a painful illness in itself. The child can be very tired, the abdomen can be sensitive, and when the joints become inflamed, they can be so tender to the touch that sometimes even contact with bed sheets is painful. A cradle is used to make a sort of tent to keep the bedding off the limbs joints — the larger joints are more likely to be involved.

In some cases St. Vitus Dance, a restlessness with ungainly, unco-ordinated motions, follows rheumatic fever. Tomorrow I will offer some more hopeful signs.

Hong Kong Riots

These city and tourist attraction across the harbor from Hong Kong. They raged through the streets setting about a dozen buses on fire, burning taxis, overturning and burning cars and attacking police, shortly after 9 p.m.

Gangs of Chinese broke the 8 p.m. curfew on Hong Kong at about 10 p.m. They poured into the streets, set fire to vehicles, and threw bottles, stones and crude bombs at police in scattered hit and run attacks.

Armed with carbines, shotguns and tear gas, police fought back. Firefighting equipment and ambulances rushed from one trouble spot to another.

After the rioting had subsided, Hong Kong police and troops raided two Communist transport union headquarters and seized makeshift weapons and propaganda material.

Wednesday night's death brought to 20 the total fatalities since anti-government rioting, demonstrations and labor strife broke out here in mid-May.

Twelve deaths have occurred since Saturday when Chinese crossed into Hong Kong at the frontier village of Sha Tau Kok and killed five policemen.

The water rationing was announced by Michael Wright, public works director. He said water would be turned on for four hours every fourth day. This will preserve the supply from the drought-depleted reservoirs if China refuses to resume water deliveries Oct. 1, he said.

China has a contract to sell Hong Kong 15,000,000 gallons of water for $2,800,000 from October until June, when the rains come. But it has given no reply to a request for additional water this summer.

formal letter of response, published Tuesday, to the July 4 resolution on Jerusalem.

"Such is the flush of military success that Israel presumes to say to the assembly: 'We will go ahead with whatever we mean to do: you 99 members of the assembly can say what you like,'" Shabi said in an allusion to the overwhelming vote cast last week.

Jordanian Foreign Minister Ahmad Tuqan said Israel's "semantic acrobatics" about underlying Jerusalem cannot hide the facts of a naked act of aggression.

"It is another form of the notorious 'civilizing mission' of colonialism and it is an offence to this assembly and its distinguished delegates," Tuqan said. Fedorenko assailed Israel's "international banditry" and its "audacity to allege that the actions of the interventionists have brought benefits to the Arabs in Jerusalem."

Israel had "banditry" stated that it does not intend to leave Jerusalem, Fedorenko said. "All this shows that the aggressor is still in a state of military excitement, and with the assistance of its powerful protectors, loses all sense of reality and follows on a very dangerous and slippery road."

DISGRACEFUL HOURS
Eban rejoined: "We have just lived through one of the most disgraceful hours in international history: an hour full of religious bigotry, incitement and political hate."

He sharply criticized Pakistan, initiator of the new resolution, as a country which has always sided with Arab belligerency and had never recognized Israel.

The assembly adjourned until today at 10:30 a.m. EDT.

SPURRED EFFORTS
The sharpup of fighting, the third since the Israeli-Arab war ended with a ceasefire June 19, spurred UN efforts to get observers posted along the Suez Canal to prevent further outbreaks.

Lt. Gen. Odd Bull of Norway, UN truce supervisor in the Middle East, discussed the situation with Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan in Jerusalem before going on to Cairo. Egypt has agreed to accept observers on the west bank of the canal and Israeli will permit them on the east bank.

Eastern European news agencies reported that Soviet and East Communist leaders had been meeting in Budapest, the Hungarian capital, for two days to discuss ways of helping Egypt.

HEADED DELEGATION

Leonid I. Brezhnev, head of the Soviet Communist party, and Premier Alexei Kosygin headed the Russian delegation. Soviet warships were expected Wednesday to get an invitation to remain indefinitely at the mouth of the Suez Canal, little more than 50 miles from the site of renewed fighting between Israeli and Egyptian forces.

Eight Russian vessels including a missile carrier and a cruiser are anchored at Port Said at the northern tip of the canal, and four more at Alexandria, on a flag-showing visit that was to last a week.

In the Public's Air

ALDERMEN WHO remember the sign bylaw battle of several years ago in Victoria would probably shudder at the thought of another round destroying their present serenity. But the recent tragic event in Seattle—the death of two elderly persons when a large electric sign tore loose from a building and fell to the sidewalk—is a reminder that Victoria, like most cities, still has not gone as far as it beneficially might in restricting private signs to private property. In the business areas, many protrude over the sidewalks.

It is mostly from the esthetic point of view that these projecting signs can be faulted. Victoria has set out to make itself a city of remarkable beauty in its man-made features, already being singularly blessed by nature. Garish signs, competing for the public eye and often cancelling one another out as a consequence, are in shattering contrast to the good work that has been done.

But though the city's construction requirements are strict enough virtually to guarantee that projecting signs won't fall on people, they do impose some hazards. Like the overhead power lines (which fortunately have been removed from the downtown streets) they can be an impediment to firefighting, and of more concern, they can confuse the motorist by making traffic signals difficult to spot.

The council thus would do well to take another look at the situation as it exists now: better than before the controversial sign bylaw was adopted, but still in need of improvement if Victoria is to hold up its head as a city in advance of most others in amelioration of its downtown scene.

And if the aldermen shun an outright ban on projecting signs, they could at least this time consider whether any company has a right to the free use of the space over public property. Compensation for the intrusion would seem to be in order, and civic rental fees might be sufficient discouragement.

London Bridge Is . . .

COUNTLESS children have sung that old refrain, "London Bridge is Falling Down." And now at last it is falling down. Well, not exactly, but it's worn out its usefulness—it can't cope with the density of modern traffic.

So it is up for sale, and the local tourist trade is agog with excitement. How wonderful it would be to buy it and import it to Victoria to enhance Ye Olde England theme—a sure-fire visitor's attraction. After all, a hot-dog stand could be erected at each entrance just to give it a Canadian tinge.

All that is needed is for some munificent philanthropist, or perhaps Mr. Bennett, to pay for dismantling its 130,000 tons of granite stone and shipping it to the Inner Harbor, where it could be re-erected as the answer to the long-held proposal of a traffic crossing there.

There is, alas, one distant drawback—apart from money, that is. London Bridge isn't long enough. It isn't high enough either, it might be remarked. Nor is it strong enough to meet the future needs of Victoria traffic, which gets heavier every day.

But the stone could be used to make bridge ends, it is pointed out, with a section of steel in the centre. And so it could, but this would be a sad comedown for one of the most famous bridges in history. A bridge is a bridge, as Gertrude Stein would say—and the physical thing that crosses whatever it is it crosses.

It wouldn't be London Bridge if it was merely lost in the approaches of what would deny its antiquity by being starkly modern. This historic Thames structure really deserves something better than that.

We could always tack on a plaque, of course, saying "that some of the stone used in this edifice, etc. . . ."

Linear Elevators

IF WHAT the highways minister found out in a tour of eastern areas of Canada and the United States is the criterion, the problem of mass transit movement will be solved for future generations. People will just take to the air.

Not in planes or helicopters or hovercraft but aboard what engineers call Teltrans, linear elevator cars which work at the push of a button and whisk you downtown at 50 miles an hour and up. No more leisurely ambling along looking in shop windows, apparently.

The idea is that people would park their cars at the edge of the downtown area—something they'll probably have to do some day anyway no matter the mode of future conveyance—and then enter small Teltrans cars to be carried along in monorail style. Stop and go would be at the convenience of the passengers, although presumably not at the convenience of the car behind.

Says Mr. Gagliardi: "The blasted things could run above the sidewalks," and let shoppers off at the first-floor levels of department stores. Rather rough on other stores, though, which don't have multiple floors; they wouldn't like that.

Although enthralled by the idea the highways minister concedes that people might consider this kind of transportation to be too "grotesque." All those concerned with the aesthetics of environment no doubt would; a hanging conveyor belt would rival the ugly overhead wiring which spoils the civic scene in so many North American towns.

But the chief virtue of Teltrans, not of course to be discounted, is that it would be a vastly cheaper system than underground tubes or subways. Strange that in an era of affluence never before achieved anywhere we cannot find the means to put these amenities underground out of sight.

Meantime Teltrans works fine at airports for moving baggage. Some folks, likely enough, will hope it stays there.

Hansard Tibbits

Good Advice

MR. Hales: . . . I have always had a very high regard for the minister . . . I commend him for making the statement not too long ago that he owes part of his success to the fact that he was always taught to make a dollar before he spent it.

Mr. Baldwin: He should impress that on some of his colleagues.

"Yes, I know all about the London Bridge bit, but who authorized purchase of the Leaning Tower of Pisa?"

Holiday Leave-Taking

Success for the House Leader

By RICHARD JACKSON, Columnist Ottawa Bureau

SO again, as it happens every summer, honours-seeking parliamentarians have left their HUI to the pigeons and the tourists.

Nothing much new here, except that . . .

. . . the holiday leave-taking—this time for a full three months or more—comes a good spell earlier than usual . . .

. . . and in engineering it there is clear proof that Health Minister MacEachen has made it as government House leader.

And making it as House leader isn't easy.

The assignment comes on top of any cabinet minister's other job—the running of his federal department—and also wears some as standard equipment for most government House leaders.

The grating, grinding responsibility completely broke the health of former Justice Minister Guy Favron.

And it all but physically exhausted Works Minister McIlraith, even though his House leadership was a stunning success.

He might have gone on forever—or until he collapsed—but when he fell asleep a couple of times at his desk in Parliament's spartan race with time to recess for the opening of Expo, Prime Minister Pearson mercifully relieved him.

And "reprise" was just the word for it.

For when a prime minister appoints one of his cabinet as House leader, he sentences him to an indefinite term of hard parliamentary labor.

The House leader is just that—leader of the House—the ringmaster of the Commons who must keep the legislative action going.

Essentially it's a job of trouble-shooting.

And since there is never any shortage of trouble in the Commons, the House leader must be around to shoot it from the opening question-and-answer of the matinee performance to the closing adjournment after the late show.

Works Minister McIlraith was a tremendously competent House leader because he never ran out of patience, and the Commons put great stock in what he came to know as his "Presbyterian composure."

The Opposition members individually and the parties collectively would take him at his word, confident they wouldn't be sweet-talked into some parliamentary deal and lose their political shirts.

He was the great exponent of quiet diplomacy, and most of the House agreements—on such things as adjournments, recesses, adjournment of time for debate, the order of speakers, the scheduling of the business of the Commons—and the inter-party agreements he routinely knitted with patient, understanding care, seldom came unraveled.

Allan MacEachen was different.

And his appointment came as a surprise, for while he had all the technical qualifications for House leadership, he was suspect of having one fatal flaw—a very short fuse.

As one of the three MPs—the lone Liberal—from Cape

Brook, he's had problems with his two fellow Maritimers, combative Donnie MacKenzie, and the perennial Bob Blair, both extremely hard parliamentary characters.

For kicks, from time to time, they had fun lighting Allan MacEachen's short-fuse fuse and laughing when he either blew his top or just sat there, in steaming frustration.

So as House leader, his problems sort of came built-in.

On the plus side, though, he long has had the ear of the prime minister who routinely swings around to consult him.

Then, he's a recognized student of the House rules. Too, he's a skilled, if not tough, debater.

But also, as one of the experts on the rules, he's been a determined advocate of what he calls "reform." And this drive to "streamline" the rules was almost guaranteed to bring him head-on in collision with a suspicious Opposition jealousy guarding its privileges and rights.

In the balance, then, nobody expected an easy time of it—much less miracles—from a freewheeling House leader MacEachen.

And then he engineers this quick and early summer recess, and makes it look easy.

Washington Calling

The President's Strategy

By MARQUEE CHILDS

WITH the hands, the buttress, the confetti, the normal, the hot dog, the steamy, yearly unrelenting atmosphere, the Democrats in convention assembled will one year from now nominate Lyndon Baines Johnson for a second full term as president of the United States. The vote by acclamation will be followed by one of those rumpus up and down the crowded aisles that are part of the great tribal rite of American politics.

The massive written during the past year about a possible challenge to the re-nomination of the president and Vice-President Hubert Humphrey has vanished like mist before the morning sun. Bobby Kennedy knows too well the fundamental rules of the game over to have believed he could get the nomination in 1968 short of Johnson deciding to bow out. It is now clear that he realizes there is no profit in sharpening any public differences he may have with the White House.
Since Bobby's destiny is five years away, this is only common sense.

Johnson is in the midst of one of those euphoric upwings that alternate with periods of retreat and comparative silence. He has good reason for his glowing self-confidence. The polls show that Louis Harris sits as a second upward climb from a previous survey.

Moreover, his opposition shows every sign of a disastrous division with the catastrophe of 1964 as a precedent. Moderate Republicans are unable or unwilling to get behind a candidate as time runs out. On the right, the conservative-opponents know what they want as they know in the years leading up to '64. The name is Ronald Reagan.

If the election were held next week the president would be re-elected by a handsome majority. Even the most ardent critic of his Vietnam war policy concedes this in private.
But these same critics believe that what happens in the next 12 months can bring a complete reversal of the current bright picture. They are convinced that with Vietnam stalemate and casualties running at the present rate the total is close to 13,000—Mr. Johnson cannot overcome the handicap of the most unpopular war in America's history.

From the tone of his recent campaign speeches, and they are just that, the president is prepared to fight it out on that line. Because it happened on West Coast time on a Friday night after most of the news media in the East had signed off, the full thrust of the president's foray into Los Anges was obscured. It was a rather remarkable sequence of events.

In the flush of the first Glasboro summit meeting and the glow of the Spirit of Holy Week, the president on his plane en route to Los Angeles talked almost continuously during the five-hour journey. Members of Congress and the press were his audience. He was taken through the side entrance of the Century Plaza Hotel and apparently was aware that the Los Angeles police suppressed 10,000 demonstrators outside the hotel in what, according to all reports, was an attack of premeditated brutality.

To the 31,000-a-plate banqueters the president made a frank avowal of his strategy in the next 18 months. This seemed to be on the assumption that the Vietnamese war continued.

"Whatever the prophets may say and whatever the columnists may write—back to Lincoln's time, at least—that is all the time I have had to research, since I started reading his column—no president could best stand upon whom he was engaged in trying to protect his country and the interests against a foreign foe."

That is the president's view of the Vietnam war—protecting the nation against a foreign foe.
In what was a peroration of Winston Churchill's declaration that he had not become His Majesty's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire, the president told the diners that he was not elected president to liquidate our agreements in Southeast Asia. "If that is what you want, he said, you will have to get another president."

The polls showing the upward spiral in the president's rating were taken during the Middle East conflict and the Glasboro summit. Thanks to the amazing branch victory, the United States was able to stand clear of the six-day war. Live television brought the pleasant ceremonials of Glasboro to 60,000,000 or more viewers. This was the rosy bloom on a performance that, on substance, produced little.

But the deeply cherished hope of a peaceful world explains in large part the rise in the president's popularity. This meaning can hardly have escaped so sensitive an appraiser of the trends of opinion.

In U.S. Schools

A New Desegregation Challenge

By ANTHONY HOWARD from Washington

THIRTEEN years after the U.S. Supreme Court delivered its famous judgment outlawing racial segregation in American schools, a new crisis is threatening those who administer the nation's system of education.

Blowing up almost without warning, it has already claimed one victim—Washington's $2,500-a-year superintendent of schools, Dr. Carl Hansen.

After nine years in the top job—and a total of 20 years serving the 165,000 school children in the nation's capital city—Dr. Hansen the other day summoned a news conference to declare that he had had enough and was finished.

Even before he formally announced it, Dr. Hansen's resignation had, in fact, begun to look inevitable. Last month after 10 years of stubbornly resisting change the Washington school system finally found itself forced to face the prospect of a drastic overhaul. The challenge to it to mend its ways came like the earlier great desegregation judgment—via a landmark decision of the courts.

A year-and-a-half ago one of the capital's most militant civil rights leaders filed a suit asking the federal district court to declare the local schools "track system" (roughly the equivalent of the "streaming" of pupils into two or three grades of mental aptitude) unconstitutional.

To virtually everyone's surprise, a local federal court did just that last month.

The judge—Mr. J. Skelly Wright, the man who single-handed seven years ago opened the schools of New Orleans to all races—was not, of course, making any assessment of educational techniques. Instead he based his decision on a finding that the "track system" had been operated in such a way as to favor white pupils and disadvantage Negro children. Branding the way it had been manipulated to keep Negro pupils in the basic or blue-collar stream "a monument to the cynicism of the local power structure," Judge Wright went on to denounce the very concept of the track system as "undemocratic and discriminatory."

To Dr. Hansen, a dedicated educator but perhaps a less sensitive sociologist, the judge's finding appeared so outrageous that he immediately announced his intention of not allowing it to stand and, if necessary, appealing it all the way to the Supreme Court.

But if Judge Wright's rhetorical language—at one stage he even called the track system
"criminal"—meant nothing to the schools superintendent, it spoke directly and powerfully to Washington's 88 per cent majority Negro population. Any attempt to repudiate it would almost certainly have meant a frontal racial collision between Washington's white and black communities—a factor that the local-appointed school board may well have taken into account in specifically forbidding Dr. Hansen to lodge any legal appeal.

It was this order that triggered Dr. Hansen's resignation—which he followed up with a charge against the board that it had denied him "a civil right of the most supreme importance." Yet few believe that even this personal denouement will be the end of the story.

For the impact of Judge Skelly Wright's decision seems bound to be felt well beyond the city limits of Washington.
Thirteen years ago it was dejure segregation that the Supreme Court attacked and overthrew; today it is the existence of de facto segregation that Judge Skelly Wright has equally vigorously challenged.

Open segregation on grounds of race may be disappearing from American schools, but in many places the same objective of separating the races is still broadly achieved by a widespread reliance on intelligence tests coupled with a policy of the careful zoning of school catchment areas.

In Washington, where the schools are already 93 per cent Negro, it is probably already too late to introduce any genuine educational integration, if only because the white community has largely deserted the state schools system. But in other cities where the racial balance is better mixed, Judge Skelly Wright's decision could well turn out to have an influence almost equal to that of the Supreme Court's original 1954 judgment. For the first time the nation, in effect, has been challenged to accept not just the legal form but also the real meaning of desegregated schools.

The Suez Canal

Dream of Harmony

By ROBERT BETTS
(First of Three Articles)

THE right time to sail through the Suez Canal was Nov. 17, 1869.

That was the day of the grand opening, and what a party it was.

Assembled in the roadstead at Port Said were 60 ships, their flattering flags representing every maritime nation. The colorful convey proceeded cautiously into the new canal, led by the French Imperial yacht "Aigle" with Empress Eugenie aboard.

Sovereigns, heads of state and delegations from all over the world were there for the inauguration. It was a day of splendid celebration and great rejoicing. Nobody had heard of Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Hero of the day was Ferdinand de Lesseps, the far-sighted, energetic Frenchman who had been the main driving force behind the creation of the new engineering wonder.

The idea for a waterway between the Mediterranean and the Red Sea did not originate with de Lesseps. Ancient Egyptian pharaohs had tried it, using the Nile as a link. Napoleon, too, thought of cutting directly through the isthmus, joining Asia and Africa, but he was too busy with his conquests to push through the project.

De Lesseps took it up again while serving as French consul-general in Alexandria. The dream of establishing a world waterway to "serve all mankind" came to dominate his life.

As a diplomat, and later as a private citizen, he strove tirelessly to overcome the insurmountable difficulties which confronted his plan.

The main obstacles were not in the sand and rock of the Suez desert, but in the chameleries and sultans of Europe. Not only had he to contend with the personal opposition of various rivals, there was political opposition as well. The British government decided the idea and worked to block construction of the canal. The British feared French pretensions in Egypt and were anxious to guard communications with their Indian empire.

But de Lesseps had the ruler of Egypt on his side. The paddy Khedive Mohammed Said was an old friend, and he was all for the canal. He authorized the formation of the Compagnie Universelle du Canal Maritime de Suez. De Lesseps, a believer in "universalism" (the 19th-Century equivalent of "One-World") expressed the hope that the "universal" company would "unite the whole universe into one great unit, politically, industrially, religiously."

Undeterred by threats, abuse and warnings of failure, de Lesseps set the work in motion, having called into service some of Europe's top engineers. On April 23, 1859, he turned the first spadeful of sand at the site where the town of Port Said was later to rise.

After 10 years of toil and sweat, the waters of the Mediterranean and Red Sea were joined directly for the first time—by a 165-mile-long canal, 200 feet wide at its maximum depth, which was 26 feet. The cost totalled nearly 433 million gold francs (about $139 million).

The completed project was hailed all over the world as a triumph of man's genius. Celebrations marked the event in many countries. Verdi composed his opera Aida especially for the occasion.

Even the British came around. Indeed, they came to regard the canal as a lifeline, vital to empire, trade and defence, and the British government eventually became the company's biggest shareholder.

The canal changed the world's economic balance. It brought into direct contact the countries located on either side of its terminal points. No longer had ships to go around the African cape. Shortened distances meant faster turn-arounds, lower freight charges and lower prices for goods transported.

Further savings resulted from the progressive lowering of toll rates for transiting the canal as traffic built up. Periodic dredging and widening enabled ever bigger ships to use the route.

In 1870, the first full year of operation, 436 vessels passed through. The yearly number increased until it had reached 14,666 in 1956.

That was the year Nasser took over.

Egyptians celebrated by blowing up the bronze, bigger-than-life statue of de Lesseps which had stood for 60 years in Port Said. With it was shattered de Lesseps' dream of harmony among nations.

'Free' for All

Wasteful Welfare

From The Gazette, Montreal

DOUGLAS Houghton, who was, until recently, minister of social security in the British Labour cabinet, has written a booklet upon some of the serious problems of the welfare system in Great Britain.

He writes of a field in which he is singularly well-informed.
And he raises the question whether the basis on which the welfare system rests is the best, and even whether it will be possible to maintain it on that basis indefinitely.

The system was set up on the basis that the same benefits should be given to all, irrespective of need. The trouble with such a principle is that it involves gigantic taxation and expenditure, with a limited result, so far as helping the needy is concerned. It is the most wasteful method of welfare.

Among the results is that hospitals are understaffed.
"Free" medical services are strained for lack of enough doctors. But, more than this, the country is so weighed down by the cost of such measures as "free" health services to all, without regard to need, that it is not in a position to meet many other needs, even though these are terribly real.

Great Britain is short of schools and short of teachers.
Recent surveys have disclosed that 4,000,000 adults are in financial distress. In England and Wales alone, nearly 2-600,000 homes are unfit to live
in.

It may well be that the solution to these deep and pressing problems will lie in the future in some government courage enough to place welfare upon a different basis. This would be the basis of helping those who need help, but not helping those who do not need it.

Only in this way may it prove possible to have enough financial scope for action—the sort of action that is called for now, but appears to be impossible with the existing tax-load.

As Mr. Douglas Houghton says in his booklet, the British are "getting the worst of both worlds—the government cannot find the money out of taxation and the citizen is not allowed to pay for it (welfare) out of his own pocket."

Maoists Seek to End British Will to Resist

Hong Kong: Guerrilla War Develops

By ROBERT S. ELEGANT
From Hong Kong

The struggle for Hong Kong between British authority and a small but highly militant group of Maoist extremists is rapidly becoming an urban guerrilla war.

The parallels with country-wide guerrilla insurrections grow closer each day as the conflict develops.

The British are endeavoring to hold a political position and to preserve the economic life of the Crown Colony.

The Maoists are seeking to overthrow British authority by all means at their command, including propaganda, armed attacks, economic sabotage, and, above all, by destroying the will to resist of the home government in London.

They know that modern guerrilla conflicts are generally won by breaking the enemy's will, rather than by defeating him in open combat.

The conflict in Hong Kong has just entered the terrorist phase — a normal stage in the development of guerrilla insurrections.

Finding themselves unable to arouse the "oppressed masses" to violent action against the British, the Maoists are now attempting to radically disrupt life and win adherents by fear.

Like rural guerrillas operating from "liberated areas," Maoist partisans have taken up residence in Communist-controlled areas, union halls, banks, and similar institutions. Slaying forth, they have wounded and slain policemen and transport workers, and have burned buildings and exploded bombs.

The government is shipping counter-measures necessary to maintain public security and confidence as leftist terrorism intensifies. The Maoist bases must first be sequestered, either by being cordoned off or being closed down.

When normal police measures fail to control terrorism, the government employs less restrained tactics in an effort to make the price of terrorism too costly.

Following the standard Communist guerrilla pattern, the Maoist leaders are now telling their followers that their victory is inevitable because the British government, pressed by British public opinion, will ultimately decide that keeping Hong Kong is not worth the trouble and expense a successful defence against the new urban guerrillas involves.

Perhaps the Maoist leaders actually believe the British will simply pull out if Hong Kong gets too hot. There is, at the moment, no basis for the Maoist's optimism. Things would have to become much hotter indeed before any such decision was considered.

Nonetheless, guerrillas cannot fight without a rationale that convinces them of their final triumph. In enunciating their new doctrine, the Maoist leaders have admitted what their followers already know: too much force employed in a frontal attack across the border might bring the Americans into Hong Kong; nor is Maoist strength in Hong Kong sufficient to defeat the British police and military in open combat. Therefore, the new doctrine of psychological victory.

Eager to calm their own followers' fears that a Maoist Hong Kong under Chinese rule would be an economic wasteland, the Maoist leadership has restated its goals.

The purpose, the leaders now say, is to create a "Chinese-ruled autonomous Hong Kong" which is not part of Communist China. Under their administration, they promise, an autonomous Hong Kong will be even more prosperous than is capitalist Hong Kong today.

It is, however, unlikely that Hong Kong's Maoists, confronted by general public antagonism, can sustain the protracted war which is implicit in such a guerrilla strategy. In the new urban guerrilla war the advantage is with the defence, since the insurgents are isolated by their lack of popular support.

"Of course he's a hero. He saved the Gordon's Gin when the mess burned down."

Motives Complex and Conflicting

Kidnapping of Tshombe International Mystery

By RONALD TRELFORD, from London

The kidnapping of the former Congolese premier, Moise Tshombe, on board a British aircraft has developed into a multi-layered international mystery to rank with the death of Patrice Lumumba and the Ben Barka affair.

There are three distinct but related episodes, each dense with its own complex and conflicting motives: How, where and to what extent they are connected is the heart of the mystery.

● June 17: Sabotage of the main copper-carrying railway line in the Congo by the blowing up of Mutshasha bridge at Lubudi, near the Angolan frontier.

● June 26: Hijacking of Tshombe's chartered plane between Libia and Majorca and its diversion to Algiers.

● July 5: Murtry in the Congolese army at Bakavu and alleged "leakage" by 300 "foreign" troops at Elongundi (formerly Stanleyville), which has been referred to the United Nations Security Council by the Congolese president, Gen. Joseph Mobutu.

Other unexplained elements are a secret visit to Algiers from June 6 to 11 by the Congolese minister of state, Bernard Mungulidika, then ambassador in Brussels, and the Congo's sudden switch last week to support the pro-Arab resolution in the UN general assembly.

Work of Saboteurs

The blowing-up of Mutshasha bridge, which has blocked all copper exports from Katanga and from Zambia, is now generally agreed to have been the work of saboteurs who flew into the Congo from Tessa da Sousa, in Portuguese Angola. The Congolese claim that the aircraft has been traced to Madrid, where it was allegedly hired by a Frenchman.

A Congolese called Monga was captured at Lubudi and is said to have confessed under torture that he took part in the sabotage. He also implicated a Belgian living in Katanga, Arsene Vandersteen, who was savagely tortured by a unit of the Congolese army.

Vandersteen, who denies being involved in the sabotage, was beaten on the stomach with hot torches and had four fingers and an ear cut off. He was then thrown naked into a railway truck and sent to Lubumbashi (formerly Elisabethville) in Katanga, where the Belgian consulate learned of his plight.

The Congolese claim that two Belgians, called Savant and Scalquin, masterminded the operation. Both are missing, but several other Belgians, including Savant's wife, are now in Congolese custody.

The purpose of the sabotage has not been satisfactorily explained, since it could be to no one's special benefit to halt the export of copper. But the Portuguese in Angola, who have been irritated by Mobutu's encouragement of African freedom fighters, might have had some motive for at least conspiring at an attempted comeback by Tshombe, whose realpolitik was more to their liking than the radical spirit shown latterly by Mobutu.

In any event, the Congolese took to heart an old Katanga saying: "When you don't know, you say it was Tshombe."

Capture Top Priority

After the discovery of the railway sabotage, Mobutu made the capture of Tshombe — plans for which had already been laid — his government's top priority.

His ambition seems to have been to deliver Tshombe to the people on June 30, the seventh anniversary of Congo independence, to face the death sentence imposed on him in his absence earlier this year.

Mobutu generally uses Independence Day to make some strong national gesture to the martyred spirit of the Congo's first leader, Patrice Lumumba, now safely dead: This year's gesture was to kidnap in mid-air the man most often blamed for Lumumba's death — Moise Tshombe.

The manner in which the kidnapping was arranged has led to speculation, notably in Belgium and Algeria, that it was the work of the United States Central Intelligence Agency, which has made spectacular intrusions into Congolese affairs in the past.

It is true that the U.S. has lately come out in strong support of Mobutu's regime, but if the CIA had wanted Tshombe out of the way, it could probably have devised some less tortuous method.

Tshombe was in Madrid, where he had lived in comfortable exile since Mobutu expelled him in 1965. He had many friends of all nationalities, no apparent shortage of money, and lived in a seventh-floor apartment with his Belgian secretary Denise Salter, a valet and chauffeur, guarded day and night by two armed Spanish detectives.

He was constantly on the telephone to Brussels—where his wife, daughter of a Congolese paramount chief, lived with their 10 children—and to South Africa, Portugal and France, where mercenaries were openly recruited in his name.

Mobutu's first move in the encirclement of Tshombe was to recruit a double-agent. The man chosen was Francis Bodenan, 41, believed to be the same Francis Bodenan who was released from a French jail in May last year after serving a 12-year sentence for murdering two business colleagues. The source in the Paris says Bodenan had worked for a number of intelligence networks.

Meeting Definite

Bodenan certainly met Tshombe in Majorca between June 7 and 10. Bodenan had hired an aircraft — the same red and white Hawker-Siddeley 125 twin jet that was later used in the kidnapping — through a firm called SEDEF (Societe d'Etude et de Documentation Economique et Financiere d'Etude) at Documentation Economique et Financiere d'Etude, which has offices in Liechtenstein and Madrid.

The plane belonged to Air Hanson Ltd., owned by James Hanson, of London. It was operated by Gregory Air Taxis of Dunsford, Buckinghamshire, who chartered it to SEDEF from June 7 to 12 and again on June 23. The pilot on the first charter was "Sandy" Burns, who said he picked up Bodenan in Madrid on June 7 and flew him to Palma, Majorca, where he had lunch at the Hotel del Mar. Later he saw Bodenan and Tshombe dining together.

What Bodenan and Tshombe had to talk about was property speculation in the Balearic Islands. Bodenan promised to introduce Tshombe to a disbarred Belgian barrister, Charles Sigal, and his blonde wife Yvonne, who had property connections in Liechtenstein.

They are believed to have offered Tshombe an interest in sites on the island of Ibiza, which would explain why they all, plus Tshombe's Spanish guards, flew there together on June 30 — and why Tshombe had 1,000,000 French francs (about $198,000 and about 160,000 Belgian francs ($1,900) in his possession.

When the aircraft arrived in Algiers, there were nine people on board: David Taylor and Trevor Coplestone (the British pilots), the Sigals, Bodenan, Marcel Hambrun (a former aide of Tshombe's from his secessionist days in Katanga in 1960), Luis Meana and Santiago Gonzalez (The Spanish guards) — and Tshombe.

Tshombe had left Madrid on the afternoon of Thursday, June 29, on a scheduled flight to Majorca.

The party landed at 3 p.m. and took off after refueling between 6:15 and 6:30.

Message from Pilot

Twenty-five minutes later the control tower at Palma heard from Taylor: the pilot: "I am obliged to go to Algiers on the orders of my passengers." One of the passengers, presumed to be Bodenan, produced a silenced automatic and forced the pilots at gunpoint to change course.

Some members of the Algerian security police may have had foreknowledge of the plot and the intended Congolese request for Tshombe's extradition.

Tshombe and the Arabs have never disguised their mutual distaste: Nasser imprisoned him for five days in Cairo in 1965 and Ben Bella once said, "In Algeria when you don't like someone you call him a Tshombe."

But it would be unwise to write off Africa's most resilient survivor. His energy and enterprise are a legend. In another six months he might still reappear as prime minister of the Congo. With Tshombe you never know.

Rinaldo

Charge Stiffer In Spying Case

TURIN, Italy (UPI)—Authorities Wednesday stiffened spy charges against Giorgio ("The Flying Madman") Rinaldo and his wife and said he received thousands of dollars from Russia to operate a European spy ring that penetrated U.S. and NATO air bases.

Revised charges against the couple said the spy ring provided

Moscow with classified information of U.S. air defenses in Europe and performances and armaments of American warplanes based in Italy and Spain. Rinaldo and his wife Angela were arrested last March and jailed with their chauffeur, Atmario Girard, on charges of collecting Italian state secrets. That crime carries a penalty of from 15 years to life upon conviction. Informed legal sources said the trial would probably begin in October. The arrests in March led to an international spy crackdown in at least eight European and African nations. Italian sources reported that more than 30 persons were arrested in Italy, Spain, Switzerland, Austria, Greece, Cyprus, Somalia and Morocco.

The charges filed Wednesday accused the Rinaldis of being in contact with Yuri Pavlenko, an attaché at the Soviet embassy in Rome, and the Russian's wife Natalia. Italy expelled the Pavlenkos at the time of the arrests. Two other Soviet diplomats were ordered out of Greece and two more Russians were expelled from Cyprus.

In addition, the charges said the Rinaldis also were in touch with other Soviet agents, including Alexei Solovov, a Russian embassy employee who was expelled from Italy in 1958 as an alleged spy. Investigators said the Rinaldis received at least $15,000 from the Soviet intelligence service between 1963 and March 1967, "to carry out acts contrary to Italy's interests." Officials said they believed Rinaldo received more money and that he deposited part of it in Swiss banks.

Sources close to Italian counter-intelligence services said the Rinaldis recruited espionage agents for the Kremlin in Italy and Spain and supplied them with money and such cloak-and-dagger equipment as invisible ink and cameras. The Rinaldis attended training courses in spy techniques during three visits to the Soviet Union, sources said, and made several trips to Rome, Spain and Switzerland to collect material for the Russians.

Rinaldo, a 35-year-old free-spending parasite buff, broke down after his arrest and gave investigators the names of 300 persons he said were officers of NATO countries involved in the ring.

NATO headquarters flatly denied at the time that such a large number of officers could be involved in espionage, and the wording of the revised charges Wednesday appeared to indicate that the men Rinaldo named in March had only been considered for approach by the ring.

No UN Request Suez Canal Job Not for Canada

Invitation

Permission was given by Israel Wednesday for UN officers under Lt.-Gen. Odd Bull of Norway to become "guests of Israeli army" and visit its side of Suez Canal. Bull, chief UN ceasefire representative, met Defence Minister Dayan to arrange posting of observers in canal zone and then left for similar talks in Cairo.

UNTSO now is wholly "swamped." The contributing countries are Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Ireland, Italy, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Sweden and the United States.

Even if Thant had to seek the new observers from the contributing countries, Canada might not be invited to send more officers.

NOT IN GREECE The only UN peacekeeping operations in which Canada did not participate was Greece in 1947 and Indonesia in 1947-48.

UN operations in which Canada has participated are Palestine in 1949, Kashmir in 1949, Korea in 1950, UNEF in 1956, Lebanon in 1958, the Congo in 1960, West New Guinea in 1962, Yemen in 1963, Cyprus in 1964 and India-Pakistan in 1965. The Palestine, Kashmir and Cyprus operations continue.

MONTREAL (CP) — Algeria's national day at Expo, originally set for next Wednesday, has been postponed to September or October, Expo officials say. They said the Middle East crisis may keep Algerian officials from taking time for the trip.

All But Two Provinces

Congo Lifts Emergency, Restores Constitution

KINSHASA (Reuters) — The Congo government Wednesday lifted the state of emergency and restored constitutional rights in all but eastern Orientale and Kivu provinces, where foreign mercenaries are fighting government forces.

In Brussels, meanwhile, it was announced that the International Red Cross today will launch an airborne expedition to evacuate Europeans being held hostage by the mercenaries in revolt against the central government here.

REPORT DENIED

In Paris, the Congolese government denied a report that Congo Interior Minister Etienne Tshisekedi had said there have been acts of cannibalism during the rebellion. The embassy said the minister had admitted some Congolese were guilty of malicious acts against Europeans but had never mentioned cannibalism.

The state of emergency was proclaimed last Wednesday when foreign mercenaries and Katangese police revolted in Kinshasa, capital of Orientale, and Bukavu, capital of Kivu. A ceasefire is in effect at Kinshasa.

RADIO CALL

Mercenaries in Kinshasa called over a clandestine radio Wednesday for the overthrow of President Joseph Mobutu's Congo government. Radio Kinshasa said the mercenaries occupy the airport at Kinshasa, the general hospital and a part of the town including the residence of provincial Governor Justin Vind Mandala, a private clinic and the provincial radio station.

The central government radio added Mobutu had ordered the ceasefire at Kinshasa continued "barring provocation by the aggressors." Congolese troops at Kinshasa were ordered to stop firing two days ago to allow evacuation of civilians.

CURFEW LIFTED

The government also opened the Congo's borders and lifted a 12-hour curfew imposed on foreigners, except in the two embattled provinces.

The official radio here said the mercenaries are demanding a new government headed by one of former premier Moise Tshombe's chief lieutenants, Godefroid Munongo, and a former premier, Gen. Leonard Mulamba.

This is the first time that Munongo and Mulamba have been mentioned in connection with the rebellion which broke out at Kinshasa — formerly Stanleyville — Bukavu and Kivu, in the eastern provinces.

TOUGH MINISTER

Munongo was Tshombe's tough, ruthless interior minister during Katanga's secession. More recently, he was governor of South Katanga but was recalled by President Mobutu late last year and has been in virtual detention in Kinshasa since then.

Mulamba was one of the officers who helped Mobutu engineer the coup which brought military government to the Congo in November, 1965. An attempt to evacuate the hostages in a United States military plane failed Tuesday when the mercenaries refused to allow the plane to land.

The rebel forces are reported to hold about 150 Europeans, including 22 reporters, in a Kinshasa hotel.

The Congo government, through its embassy in Paris, categorically denied press reports, based on stories from European refugees from Bukavu, that whites had been massacred in that eastern Congolese city after the rebellion was crushed by government troops.

held sharp criticism of the U.S. and its allies for what was described as aggressive support for Israeli military activity against Arab nations during the six-day war.

The communiqué declared outright support for a "total further use of appropriate means" to reverse the Israeli military victory, specifically an end to Israel's occupation of Arab territory.

The conference was convened in secrecy and included Yugoslavia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

More Arab Aid Pledged by Reds

MOSCOW (LAT)—The Soviet Union and six East European allies wound up a two-day summit conference in Hungary Wednesday with an agreement to take additional military and economic steps to bolster the Arab world.

This marks the second time in just over a month that top Communist party and government leaders have met to plot joint strategy in the Middle East. The first eight-nation meeting took place in Moscow June 9.

A combined communiqué was issued at the end of the summit. It called for a "total further use of appropriate means" to reverse the Israeli military victory, specifically an end to Israel's occupation of Arab territory.

The conference was convened in secrecy and included Yugoslavia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia and Bulgaria.

In Moscow This Month Japan Will Attempt Viet Peace Talks

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan will make a new Vietnam peace attempt at ministerial talks with the Soviet Union in Moscow later this month, foreign ministry sources disclosed Wednesday.

The sources said Vietnam and the Middle East crises would be two major topics at the talks, which will be the first of a series of regular sessions agreed upon by the two countries last year.

NEW MISSION

In Saigon, the U.S. command announced today 13,000 American, South Vietnamese, Australian and New Zealand forces have launched a new offensive against the Viet Cong 50 miles east of Saigon in some of the worst terrain in Southeast Asia. The area is laced with swamps and dense jungle.

The new search-and-destroy mission started Saturday, but was not announced until today for security reasons. It is dubbed Operation Puddingstone for a suburb of Sydney, Australia.

On Wednesday, North Vietnamese regulars attacked U.S. troops in South Vietnam's central highlands for the second time this week. U.S. infantry suffered 35 dead and 26 wounded in a four-hour battle.

On the air front, U.S. jets attacked a MIG base near Hanoi but pilots said the only planes on the field were dummy models.

Pilots reported damaging and destroying several buildings at the Hoa Lac airfield, knocking out two anti-aircraft sites and cratering the runway in four places.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

Fishermen, Boat Owners Both Gain by New Pact

By GEORGE INGLIS

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union gained ground Wednesday in its protracted dispute with trawl boat owners, as the vessel owners' association signed an agreement previously ratified by union members.

Under the agreement, which has kept trawlers of the B.C. Fishing Vessel Owners' Association tied up since March 17:

- Workmen's compensation and unloading costs will now be taken off the gross stock, a double gain for the union.

- Vessel owners will receive a flat 40 per cent of the catch, a gain for the owners.

DRAMATIC GAIN

The compensation item represents a dramatic gain, since it means all fishermen now will be covered when they go to sea, and the vessel owners will be sharing the cost. Until this agreement was signed, the fishermen were regarded as "co-adventurers" and provided their own compensation.

This resulted, in more than one instance, in a fisherman going to sea and being drowned while not covered by compensation — working a hardship on widows and families.

The unloading charges coming off gross stock means the vessel owner contributes to the unloading. The owners wanted this to come off net stock, after the vessel's share had been deducted.

MORE FOR OWNERS

The flat 40-per-cent share of the catch, after some expenses have been taken off the top, gives the larger boat owners 2½ per cent that was taken away in the lucrative dogfish days, when larger crews reaped rich harvests.

Only one Victoria-based boat, the Ocean Traveller owned by Frank Gale, is in the association and will be directly affected by the agreement.

About three other independent boats will be affected in Victoria. There are about 18 association boats and several independents in the Vancouver area.

No Prince Rupert boats are in the Vancouver-based association, so the dispute there will be unaffected by the agreement. The likelihood, however, is that the independents will go along with the association.

This is the first agreement signed by the B.C. trawl vessels with the union.

Chrysler Gets Demands

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union Wednesday gave its new contract demands to Chrysler and presented GM with its first position paper on the main item, a guaranteed annual income. The demands were given to GM Monday and Ford Tuesday.

The UAW told GM the income should allow the worker "to maintain his normal living standard for a period of time, graduated according to his length of service, up to a full year."

Labor Airs Feud

VANCOUVER (CP) — A bid to resolve a bitter dispute between the British Columbia Federation of Labor and four locals of the International Woodworkers of America will be made later this month.

Ray Haynes, federation secretary, said Wednesday a vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress will attend a Vancouver meeting on the feud.

The four IWA locals — Vancouver, Victoria, Duncan and the lumber inspectors — were suspended by the federation for refusing to publicly apologize for a scolding attack on C.L.C. executive vice-president Joe Morris.

Mr. Haynes said a definite date for the summit session has not been set.

The IWA has threatened that unless the federation rescinds the suspensions, the entire 30,000 members of the IWA in B.C. will withdraw from the federation.

Painter Wins $2,000

Sidney painter Michael Morris has been awarded a $2,000 prize in the centennial art competition, Perspective '67.

Mr. Morris, 25, lived at 2287 Beacon before moving to a teaching post at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby.

The painter studied in Vancouver and at the Slade School in London on a Canada Council scholarship. He was awarded a one-man show at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria in December, 1965.

The Hon. John Gilbey arrives home from another international tour

England welcomes home the Hon. John Gilbey

Arriving home after another International Tour, the Hon. John Gilbey remarks on the excellent standards of Gilbey's London Dry in Canada. And Gilbey's International Quality Controller announces that he will now compare the English Gilbey's with its overseas brother:

"My gin has been the best gin in the world for no less than 110 years," says the Hon. John Gilbey. "In Canada, for example, I have found that Gilbey's London Dry perfectly matches the original English standard. So now I intend to compare our English product with it."

Next time you see Gilbey's famous frosty bottle, remember the Hon. John Gilbey and his job as Gilbey's International Quality Controller. When you see the gin with the perfect balance for mixed drinks, bear in mind his proud words: "This is my gin! For no less than 110 years it has carried my family's name. Gilbey's London Dry is the gin with the perfect balance for mixed drinks. And I shall make sure it stays that way."

Tourism Up Despite Expo Lure

By IAN STREET
 Legislative Reporter

B.C. tourism is more than holding its own this summer against the lure of Expo 67 in Montreal, Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

"We have the opposite story," Bennett said, when asked to comment on suggestions by some tourist spokesmen that the visitor business had suffered.

In the first 10 days of July, the premier said, travel on the Swains Bay-Tsawwassen service was up 11 per cent over the same period last year.

MORE TRAVEL

He quoted figures showing 28,031 vehicles used the ferries on that route in the 10-day period last year, but traffic had increased to 27,814 July 1 to 10 in 1967.

Passengers in the same period on the same run totalled 83,000 in 1967, compared with 75,000 in 1966. Revenues in the same period on the run increased 13.6 per cent, $255,786 in 1967 to $334,847 in 1966 during the 10-day period.

FERRY FIGURES

Bennett gave figures for the comparable period on the Horseshoe Bay-Nanaimo run of 20,330 vehicles in 1966 and 23,314 vehicles in the July 1 to 10 period this year.

Other ferry figures, including the Prince Rupert run, and border crossing records also indicated the 1967 tourist business was up considerably compared with last year.

Asked if the authority would cut fares, Bennett replied: "The answer is no, never. We're in an inflationary world."

He said some sections of the tourist industry might be doing less business this season because there has been a substantial growth in most facilities catering to visitors.

'Ours Best in World'

Premier Praises Bonds

Premier Bennett will fly back from Expo to attend a bond dealers' breakfast in Vancouver Monday where $50,000,000 in party bonds will go on sale.

He told a press conference Wednesday this issue is a normal rollover in the five-year bonds which paid 5 1/2 per cent interest. The premier declined to indicate whether interest rates will go up to meet a federal offer of 6 1/2 per cent on its current rollover bonds.

Bennett said no government has been able to match the B.C. party bonds because it takes liquid finances to be able to meet possible demands for $50,000,000 in outstanding parties at any time.

"This isn't a five-year bond — this is a minute bond," the premier said. "There's nothing like it anywhere else in the world. You can use it to buy groceries, hardware, or a home. Any bank will cash it. But it's better than money because every three months you clip a coupon."

The premier urged everyone who wishes to buy some of this party bond rollover issue to get their orders in without waiting for Monday's bond breakfast.

He said "a good rate of interest" would be announced at that time.

British Press Visit

U.S. Policy Defended

Critics of U.S. involvement in Vietnam may soon be thankful for the presence of Americans in the Far East, Premier Bennett said Wednesday.

He was commenting on questions about Vietnam directed to him by a visiting group of British journalists at a press conference Tuesday.

"Some of these people that are yelling at the Americans over Vietnam may be yelling the other way over Hong Kong," the premier said.

NOT DOOMED

In reply to a question, Bennett said he didn't think the Crown colony of Hong Kong was doomed, but added, "I think it would now be impossible to depend upon."

Hong Kong wouldn't stand up

"for five minutes" to a serious attack by Communist China, he said. But, considering its importance to China's foreign trade, any move against Hong Kong must indicate the degree of turmoil that exists within China.

BIGGEST LOSER

The biggest loser if Hong Kong became part of the mainland would be China itself, Bennett said.

Premier Bennett led a B.C. trade mission composed of six cabinet ministers to the Far East two years ago. In Hong Kong the delegation met with representatives of mainland Chinese trading companies. No major new export deals affecting B.C. have been announced since the meetings.

Bennett Blasts Ottawa

B.C. Still Wants Shares in Bank

The provincial government would still like to own some shares in the Bank of B.C., Premier Bennett indicated Wednesday.

"The future of B.C. depends upon this bank," the premier told a press conference. "Why are (federal politicians) so fearful of the Dynamic Society in B.C.? Why?"

Bennett said the politicians and senators who opposed provincial ownership of bank shares said the public would get behind the bank without government participation.

"With us out they didn't get behind it — but the bank will be a success anyway," Bennett said. He repeated earlier statements by president Frank Tremblay that the B.C. Bank would achieve its $75 million capital goal by stages over the next seven years and would make a profit in the meantime.

WHY US?

"Why does the government stop us from holding shares in the bank? Prior to this bank any government could buy bank shares," the premier said.

He added: "No wonder we are critical of the Liberal and Conservative governments (in Ottawa). If they would get out of the way somebody could do something."

"This is the greatest country in the world being held back by reactionary politicians of the right and the left."

Party Will Be Second At Sacred Wingding

Premier Bennett will be a provincial spokesman first and party leader second next month.

He announced the Sacred birthday, normally Aug. 1, this year will be held Aug. 5, in Vancouver's Stanley Park.

The postponement will allow Bennett to attend the provincial premier's conference in Fredericton, N.B., Aug. 1 and 2;

Last year when Social Credit marked the 14th anniversary of its coming to power with a wingding in Kelowna, the premier missed a similar conference and was criticized for it.

This year the party will take the form of an old-fashioned strawberry social. Sacred will supply free tea, coffee, milk and ice cream and guests will bring their own box lunch.

California Vegetables Will Cost More Here

A cold and wet California spring may send local produce prices up this summer.

Price Cycle Hits Cominco

MONTREAL (CP) — Cominco Ltd. reported in its interim statement that estimated net earnings of the company and all its subsidiaries for the first half of 1967 are $21,100,000 (or $1.26), compared with $26,900,000 ($1.61) in the same period last year.

Sales were $114,800,000 against $121,700,000.

The figures include those of Pine Point Mines Ltd.

The company said the reduction in earnings is the reflection of a cyclical decline in the market prices of lead and zinc and there is little prospect of any improvement this year.

Drastic Action

Nation-Wide Strike Sought by Farmers

BOGNAR, Ont. (CP) — Local Quebec and Ontario farmers. 12 of the Ontario Farmers Union will ask the national executive to initiate a countrywide general farm strike beginning Aug. 15.

Stewart Carmichael, president of the local, said in an interview Wednesday that farmers believe the time has come for more drastic action following the May 24 march on Ottawa by Barge July 15-20.

Bognar-area farmers believe a strike is inevitable. A directive to the national executive, passed Tuesday by members of the local in this community six miles southeast of Owen Sound, urged that organization for the strike begin at once.

The proposal will be brought before the national convention in the May 24 march on Ottawa by Barge July 15-20.

A bush fire at McCrae's gravel pit Wednesday kept Langford volunteer firemen busy for more than eight hours.

The fire blackened about four acres. It was put out at 9 p.m. The blaze got out of hand in the afternoon and Colwood volunteers helped under the mutual aid agreement.

Colwood got its own workout in the evening when a grassfire in the Cuthaw-Painter-Metchosin Road area brought out 36 men. It was out by 8:20 p.m. but a hidden spark set it off again and it was 11 o'clock before it was out, with about 1½ acres burned.

Chamber Music Delights Campus Crowd

By BILL THOMAS

It's a happy feeling to be able to sit back and say "I told you so," but this time his true. There has been an audience for chamber music in this city. A near-hall house at the university Wednesday night proved it beyond doubt.

The quartet and two quintets produced a sound that belied the brief association of most of the players. They are probably all familiar with the repertoire but they will only go so far to please an audience for lack of rehearsal time together.

FLUTE WORK

The first offering, Mozart's flute concerto, featured soloist Canard Crocker, a fine musician who set the atmosphere for an excellent evening. He was supported by cellist Hans Siegrist, violinist Norman Nelson and violinist Simon Streetfield.

The work is said to have been written for a Dutch amateur who must have been most accomplished if he did the work any justice. Mr. Crocker certainly did.

IN BOTH

Robin Wood, director of the University of Victoria's Summer Workshop in Chamber Music, played in both the Beethoven quintet for piano and wind instruments and in the Dvorak piano quartet.

The Beethoven work was particularly well played by the quintet of Mr. Wood, Bernard Shapiro, oboe; Henk Van de Merwe, horn; Morgan Griffin, bassoon; and Ronald de Kant, clarinet.

The tone and control of the horn were particularly noticeable in the second movement of the Beethoven. The players in this offering seemed to come closest to an integrated performance.

IDEAL CHOICE

The selection of works for this first faculty concert was ideal. The Mozart was sprightly and crisp, the Beethoven nudged closer to the profound but the Dvorak was pure delight.

It was fitting that the audience should insist on an encore and the quintet of Robin Wood, Tessa Robbins, Norman Nelson, Hans Siegrist and Simon Streetfield obliged by repeating the last movement.

SIX MORE

There are to be six more offerings in this concert series and if the quality continues there it is possible that there will be insufficient adjectives to offer the performers.

Tomorrow night the program will include works by Ravel, Vivaldi, Hindemith and Shostakovich. This series is definitely to be recommended.

Butchart Show Colorful Fantasy

By JIM KETMAN

The flowery fairyland at Bickham Garden sparkled with puckish magic and dreamland fantasy Wednesday night.

The 1½-hour concoction, called Just for Fun, is a far-reaching feast of humor, nostalgia, satire, sincerity—but most of all—fun.

The show, directed and designed by Bebe Everfield, is presented Monday, Wednesday and Friday during the summer months and draws to five garden guests a tasty brew d'oeuvre to savor as they wander through the beautiful gardens.

The choreography seemed a good bit hackneyed. The dancers waltzed and strutted to pop, rock and rap tunes, and came across as a dated fashion, which war may excused but came across as rather stock.

The Theatrical Arts Dancers, about 15 or so of them, got the proverbial slow start but moved with deft precision as the show picked up.

The choreography seemed good but hackneyed. The dancers waltzed and strutted in pop, ballet, can-can and tap dance fashion, which was well executed but came across as rather stock.

The singers were confident, clear, and except for a little inadvertant loudspeaker double-switching, put across their numbers — from old hat Fascination, to funny Don't Tell Mama, with some impact.

Folksinger Murray McAlpine and female friend wowed 'em every time with carefully tuned (to the audience), delicate songs.

Best of all were the imaginative skirts which, using a theme of some sort, encompassed several numbers and nearly all the crew in a neat, fast-moving, memorable mixture of, well, fun.

This was done once with a Mexican motif, where a hat dance and a Tijuana Brass number, together with brilliant con-

Near the end, a hippie skit, with a motley assemblage of the shaggy-dressed, gathered for non-worship in a "church of light," crept and crawled with appropriate abandon.

The dancers must be congratulated for a mod, impressionistic dance that did a beautiful job of interpreting a modern piano piece.

Pilot Case, Kennedy Election

Khrushchev Claims Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard M. Nixon denied Wednesday a Nikita S. Khrushchev's statement that Nixon sought the release of U-2 pilot Gary Powers to help him win the 1960 presidential election. He also dismissed the former Soviet premier's contention that the Kremlin boosted John F. Kennedy into office.

An aide to the former vice-president said: "The factual record clearly demonstrates that Mr. Khrushchev's memory is faulty."

Khrushchev, who called Nixon a "good for nothing—an unprincipled puppet" on a National Broadcasting Co. program Tuesday, said that he helped Kennedy to victory by ignoring Nixon's request that Powers be released from a Soviet prison.

And when Khrushchev said he told Kennedy of his action at the Vienna summit meeting, Kennedy agreed that it had meant a few hundred thousand votes—his winning margin.

"Mr. Nixon's opinion with regard to Mr. Khrushchev's contention that Khrushchev elected President Kennedy is that this is an unfair reflection on the late president," aide Patrick Buchanan said.

"And he also believes that the overwhelming majority of American voters will reject the implication that a foreign head of government was responsible for the election of an American president."

On the question of Powers, eventually released in 1955, Nixon's office said that at "no time in the 1960 campaign did Mr. Nixon seek to intercede directly with the Soviet government or to have the American government intercede to secure the release of Powers."

"It is possible that Mr. Khrushchev has confused several situations. During Mr. Nixon's visit to Moscow in 1959 as vice-president he did bring up the question of the American flyers who had been shot down in a C-130 transport plane by Soviet fighters months before that. However, that was the last time he spoke with Mr. Khrushchev. Powers was shot down in May of 1960."

Anguilla Independent

Tiny Island Whooping It Up

ANGUILLA (Reuters) — This little Caribbean island has become one of the world's smallest independent states. Its people voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to break away from the Federation of St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla.

An announcement that more than 70 per cent of the registered voters had chosen secession in a Tuesday referendum was made on the steps of the police station here.

Anguilla, which has a population of 6,000, voted to form an interim government.

More than 200 of the islanders who six weeks ago mounted a rebellion against the central government in St. Kitts greeted the result with cheers and a new national anthem.

Walter Hodge, chairman of the 15-man peacekeeping committee which has been running affairs here, said: "Anguilla is absolutely and conclusively independent from St. Kitts."

The committee began to operate at the end of May when 13 policemen from St. Kitts were ordered off the 35-square-mile island.

The first task of the new state would be to seek "appropriate legal arrangements" with Britain. Anguilla wishes to retain links with the crown, Hodge said.

Britain created the three-island, self-governing state Feb. 27 from separate colonies. Anguilla immediately protested that they were being kept under the thumb of the central government based in St. Kitts.

London Pleased By Interest In Old Bridge

Civic officials in London welcomed Wednesday the news that Victorians are interested in acquiring the 136-year-old London Bridge which has to be torn down to make room for a modern, six-lane bridge.

But they said the private corporation which owns the old stone bridge has no intention of disposing of it piecemeal. Whoever buys the historical landmark will have to take all or nothing.

"NOT WORTHY" London city engineer Harold King said, "It is not worthy for a great historical monument to be broken up and sold little by little, and if the bridge is not sold, it will be dismantled and disposed of for scrap."

Officials in three Canadian cities, Victoria, Winnipeg and London, Ont., have expressed interest in acquisition of London Bridge, since the sale offer was made earlier this week.

But it would cost the new owner $300,000 just to dismantle the stones of the 1,005-foot-long structure. No estimate is available about how much it would cost to ship the stone to Canada and reassemble the bridge.

The 130,000-ton structure stands on the site of bridges dating back about 2,000 years, and thrones have been made on the stone for nearly 1,000 years.

W. J. Wallace, a spokesman for the college, said in cases where "immediate dentures" are to be fitted over gums still suffering the effects of extraction, the dentist has training to fit dentures but dental mechanics do not.

Dentist Loses Plea Against Suspension

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Leonard Eggers, a Vancouver dentist, Wednesday lost his Supreme Court appeal against a two-year suspension by the B.C. College of Dental Surgeons.

The college had ordered Dr. Eggers suspended from May 8, 1967, to May 7, 1969, for violating college rules in extracting the teeth of a woman without first finding out if some one other than a dentist was going to fit dentures before surgery of a 21-day period after the extraction.

During the appeal the court was told the woman had gone to a dental mechanic before the extraction to have an impression made. She returned to the mechanic the day after the extraction to have dentures fitted.

W. J. Wallace, a spokesman for the college, said in cases where "immediate dentures" are to be fitted over gums still suffering the effects of extraction, the dentist has training to fit dentures but dental mechanics do not.

Lawyer Robert Hayman, representing Dr. Eggers, said the regulation was invalid because it was a restraint of trade, unreasonable and beyond the power of the college to enforce.

Mr. Justice V. L. Dryden said the college did have authority to make the regulation valid — but the regulation was "reasonable in the interests of the dental profession and the interests of the public."

On Wages

Nurses Submit Report

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Psychiatric Nurses' Association of B.C. Wednesday submitted a 30-page brief to the Civil Service Commission to support demands for a wage increase.

Russell Martin, association president, said he had hoped the wage dispute would be settled by now but "So much information was uncovered in support of a wage boost that it was decided to submit a detailed report."

REPORT STUDIED He said he had been told the commission was studying the report and would announce recommendations before a meeting with the association July 27. That meeting will continue until an agreement is reached.

The nurses, employed in provincial mental hospitals, first asked for a 25-per-cent pay increase. The government's last offer was 5 1/2 per cent plus $18 a month on a basic salary of $302 a month.

The nurses earlier withdrew a threat to resign as a group after the government promised more job security and "professional recognition."

Trinidad Airline

Canadian Deal Denied

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters) — Government sources have denied a report from Guyana that the Canadian government has bought 60 per cent of the financially-troubled British West Indian Airways.

The airline, reported facing a $15,000,000 (Trinidad) accumulated deficit, is owned by the Trinidad government and operates flights throughout the Caribbean and between New York and the Caribbean.

In denying the report, the sources said the Canadian government began negotiations to acquire BWIA shares with the understanding that Trinidad, Jamaica, Guyana and Barbados would join in running the operation.

An external affairs department spokesman said at Ottawa there have been continuing discussions between Canada and Caribbean members of the Commonwealth on air matters.

The first talks were held in the capital a year ago. They have included discussions on aid as well as commercial aspects of Caribbean air operations.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Winnipeg, it appears, is about to make an outstanding success of the Pan-American Games but when the last medal has been presented on Aug. 7, some real competitors will take over. There won't be any big demand for tickets, it will, all to the good, lack the nationalistic fervor of most international competition and the 100-yard dash will likely be won in something more than 30 seconds. But it won't lack because of that. It is probably competition at its best. At least it takes the most and gives the most.

It will take place in the Pan-American Paralympic Games, which start in Winnipeg on Aug. 8 and carry on for six days. If you don't think it's important you should take the time to go to the workouts which are preparing a Vancouver Island contingent of at least five competitors for the Canadian Paralympic team.

They will compete against teams from the United States, Mexico, the West Indies, Venezuela, Uruguay and Jamaica. And a lone entrant from Peru.

The list of events is more varied than one might believe possible and the number of competitors, due to classifications, is quite impressive.

Field events include the discus, shot put and two javelin throws, one regular and the second a "precision" event in which competitors aim at targets on the ground, 30 metres away for the men and seven metres distant for the women, and are scored for accuracy. There is also the "club throw," in which clubs which weigh about a pound are thrown for distance. In the track events, men will compete at 100, 400 and 1,500 metres, in a 400 relay and in a slalom run over a zig-zag course which has both down and up-hill stretches. Women will vie at 50 metres, in a 400 relay and a slalom run.

There are also basketball, volleyball and soccer tournaments, weight-lifting, archery and "darts" competitions and a pentathlon event for both men and women which includes the discus, the javelin, shot put and archery.

Darts is a bow-and-arrow event played and scored on the principle of darts. Weightlifters are divided into four weight classifications — heavyweights at more than 168 pounds, middleweights between 141 and 168 pounds, lightweights between 126 and 140 pounds and featherweights under 126 pounds.

Swimming events, the only competition not involving the use of wheelchairs, are limited to three styles — the front freestyle in which the head must always be face down, the breaststroke and what is called the freestyle backstroke. The length in each event is 25 metres for A class competitors and 50 metres for B, C and D class competitors. There is also a 75-metre individual medley for the A group and a 150-metre medley for the other three groups.

There are actually eight different classifications of athletes. Victims of poliomyelitis, muscular dystrophy, multiple sclerosis or spinal-cord lesion, mainly the result of industrial or motor accidents, competitors are first divided into four different competing groups according to the location of the lesion.

"A" group is for those with their trouble in the neck and shoulder area and it works down from "B" to "C" to "D" group, which is for those afflicted in the lumbar region. Then each group is divided into two groups — complete (AC, BC, CC and DC) for those with practically complete paralysis from the lesion down and incomplete (AI, BI, CI and DI) for those who have partial movement.

It takes as much time and effort, and more dedication, to prepare a team for the Paralympic games as it does for any international competition. But the dedication comes willingly, from both competitor and contributor.

The Independent Order of Foresters is sharing with the federal government the costs of transporting the Canadian team to Winnipeg and of outfitting it in combat and non-combat dress. On the local level in every Canadian centre involved, there are dozens of contributors.

In Victoria the list of the helpful includes Robbie Robinson, Art Burgess and executive-director J. A. McDermott of the YMCA, Gary Taylor of Oak Bay High School and Len Cuff, a ham radio operator who spends four hours every Sunday transmitting any information desired to other Canadian Paralympic branches.

It also includes Roddy Ryan, executive-secretary of the Rehabilitation Foundation of B.C., an indefatigable "retriever" at the workouts and a "tough" coach.

"It's almost time for the games and time to quit fooling around," Ryan said this week as he announced that the twice-weekly schedule was being scrapped for daily workouts. "We have got to be in shape if we're going to make a showing."

Ryan, who is co-ordinating the activities of the Victoria Branch of the Canadian Paralympic Association as well as coaching members trying for a trip to Winnipeg, is completely sold on athletics as therapy and delighted with the growth of international competition, which now includes Commonwealth and Olympic Games as well as the Pan-American.

"It's really wonderful to see what competition does and how keen they are," he says.

Lorna Vinden, a director of the Victoria branch of the CPA, says it for the Paralympics.

"When it happens some of us think about what we can no longer do and others think of what we are going to do. Competition helps many to take the positive view."

Getting Ready for the Best

Getting ready for Pan-American Paralympic Games in Winnipeg, Aug. 8-13, are group of Victorians. Coach Roddy Ryan says he hopes to send at least five for Canadian team and has his charges going through increasingly stiff practice sessions. At top, Doug Ross is seen getting away with a good discus throw while Lorna Vinden, whose best distance of more than 12 feet ranks with best in Canada, shows good shot-put form. Coach Ryan is shown in bottom picture talking about javelin throw with Paul Roberge of Duncan. — (Photos by Wm. E. John)

Rawlings walked a step closer to second place in the Senior Baseball League last night with a 21-3 rout of last-place King's Hotel.

Right-hander George Brice was the biggest beneficiary of the ineptness of his opposition.

He breezed to his third straight win and had himself a lot of fun at the plate, hitting a double and two singles and getting three bases on balls as he drove in four runs and scored four.

And Ken Geary had to be a bit unimpressed with his first try at the senior league. Up from Connie Mack ranks for the game, Geary drove in five runs with a double, single and bases-loaded walk.

The opportunity to bat in runs was always there for the winners. They got 14 hits and 16 bases on balls and were helped by five errors as they put more than 30 men on the bags.

In an exhibition game, Connie Mack All-Stars looked as if they might be a senior-league replacement as they fought the leading Transport Workers valiantly before bowing 3-2.

Brian Brossard and Pete Duncan held Transporters to five hits.

Coquitlam Tops Rocks To Take League Lead

Victoria Shamrocks, early Inter-City Lacrosse League leaders, lost 5-7, to Coquitlam Adanacs Wednesday at Memorial Arena and could be in the league cellar after the Vancouver at New Westminster game tonight.

It was the fourth loss in a row for Shamrocks who now are tied for second place with Vancouver, one point behind Coquitlam which took over first with the win.

For the second home game in a row, Victoria folded in the third period when Coquitlam scored three goals before Nirval Dillon scored on a breakaway for Shamrocks' only goal of the period at 16:16.

With each team having only nine games remaining, Shamrocks will have to stop the skid quickly as New Westminster has won four straight and is just two points out of first place.

Last week Shamrocks lost because they didn't shoot. They shot against Adanacs Wednesday but Joe Comeau showed why he has the best goaltending average, coming up with 30 saves in a steady and sometimes spectacular performance.

Rocks came out shooting, sending 17 shots at Comeau, but the big goalkeeper seemed to have the net filled as Victoria only managed a 3-2 lead.

Coquitlam took the lead when Marty Jordan found John Surinak alone in front of the net and Surinak deflected a high shot in off Victoria goaltender Doug Thompson, who had a rather shaky night despite some spectacular saves.

Scott scored the first two goals of his senior career to break the Shamrocks back.

Scott ducked an overhead stick check from Billy Munroe, turned, and beat Thompson on the short side.

After Surinak made it 5-4 for Adanacs at 2:27 mark with his second goal of the night, Scott sped in unnoticed by everyone except Bill Bradley who had the ball.

Bradley fed Scott a perfect pass and the youngster beat Thompson cleanly. Bradley scored the clincher while both sides were a man short.

NEED WIN SATURDAY

Billy Gray, Ray Beech and Rex Foster scored the other Victoria goals, while Alex Carey scored once for Coquitlam.

Shamrocks could regain first place with a win in Coquitlam on Saturday, something they have accomplished only once in three seasons.

They will be without coach Dave Urwin, who is sitting out the second game of a two game suspension. Jim McNeill is filling in.

Majority of Shareholders Accept Cooke's Totem Bid

SEATTLE (AP)—A majority stockholders' group of Seattle Totems in the Western Hockey League announced Wednesday they have accepted an offer for their holdings from Jack Kent Cooke of Los Angeles.

Cooke, former Canadian publisher and sportsman, owns Los Angeles Kings, one of six new teams in the National Hockey League. He also owns Los Angeles Lakers of the National Basketball Association.

Harvey Swenson, spokesman for the group, said Cooke has agreed to purchase the 150 shares held by eight of the Seattle club's 14 directors. The six others hold 128 shares.

Swenson said the minority stockholders have the right of first refusal, "but Cooke's proposition is such that I don't think they can duplicate it." He declined to give the terms.

A special directors' meeting has been scheduled for Monday. Swenson said Cooke was interested in making Seattle "a paying city, not a farm club," and the result would put Seattle in line for the next NHL expansion.

If the deal goes through, Seattle will be the second minor league hockey club purchased by Cooke this year. He bought the Springfield team of the American Hockey League recently, obtaining the contracts of 29 players.

LOTS OF TALENT

"These players, along with his NHL draft of a full team complement, give him more players and trading talent than anyone else," Swenson said. "Because of this, we feel a relationship with Cooke is the strongest affiliation Seattle could make."

Cardinals Pad Lead On Shannon Homer

In the National League, where seven teams are rated about equal and an eighth won the championship last year, steadiness is what is going to count. And steady is what the St. Louis Cardinals have been all season.

While other clubs have been having ups and downs, the Cardinals have stayed on an even keel, at or near the top from the start and slowly but surely building up a margin of victories over defeats.

TENSE LATE INNINGS

They returned to action a day early after the major league all-star game and yesterday extended their lead to four full games with a 4-3 win over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dick Hughes was working on a three-hit shutout when the Pirates suddenly overcame an 0-2 deficit in the eighth inning. A two-run homer by Gene Alley, a triple by Jerry May and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Manny Mota put the Pirates ahead, 3-2.

But the Cards came back in their half of the eighth as Orlando Cepeda led off with a single and touched off a bit of master-mindling by Pittsburgh manager Harry Walker.

Walker brought in southpaw Juan Pizarro to pitch against the left-handed-hitting Tim McCarver and looked good when McCarver popped out. Then in came right-hander Pete Mikkelsen and it all went black when the right-handed-hitting Mike Shannon hit a home run.

INDIANS BEAT SOX

Chicago White Sox also made up a rained-out game in the only other action yesterday, but the American League leaders didn't do as well as the Cards.

Cleveland Indians jumped on two-run homer by Gene Alley, a triple by Jerry May and a

Optimists Gain Babe Ruth Final

DUNCAN — Victoria Evening Optimists reached the final of the Vancouver Island Babe Ruth baseball championship (13-year-old variety) here, Wednesday night, trouncing Victoria Babe Ruth, 10-1, behind the one-hit pitching of Glen Campbell.

Victory left Optimists as the only unbeaten team in what started as a six-team, double-knockout competition and gave them two chances to win the championship.

IN CONSOLATION

The losing club dropped into the losers' section, which also includes Victoria Cosmopolitans, Ladyamith - Chemalmus and Alberni Valley. The Duncan entry was eliminated through a second loss Tuesday night.

Under the draw being used, Cosmopolitans meet Ladyamith, Chemalmus tonight with the loser eliminated and the winner to play Alberni Valley on Friday night.

EIGHT STRIKEOUTS

Victoria Babe Ruth will meet Campbell in the final on Saturday afternoon at 1 to decide the other finalists, who must then beat the Evening Optimists twice.

Although he walked eight men, Campbell was unhitatable after giving up a first-inning hit and got out of the trouble his wildness caused him with the help of eight strikeouts and steady support.

He lost his shutout in the last inning on a base on balls, two stolen bases and an overthrow at third base.

Evening Optimists: 300 128 9-10 10 1
Victoria Babe Ruth: 90 85 1-1 1 8

Hartley Upsets Hassard In City Tennis Tourney

Veteran Gordon Hartley pulled the biggest upset so far in the city tennis championships

Wednesday at Racquet Club of Victoria's courts.

Lionel

Obscure British Pro Takes Lead in Open

HOYLAK, England (AP)—Lionel Platts, an obscure, 35-year-old English professional, shot into the first round lead with a four-under-par 68 Wednesday while heavily favored Jack Nicklaus settled for a 71 in the first round of the British Open golf championship.

"I played better than I did in winning at Muirfield last year but I couldn't putt," Nicklaus lamented. "I could have sunk another eight putts."

Gay Brewer Jr., of Dallas, Tex., turned in a 70, the best opening score for the strong American contingent.

Doug Sanders of Ojai, Calif., regularly one of the top money winners on the U.S. tour, had a 76. Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., the former U.S. and British amateur king who turned pro this summer, shot 72, and pudgy Phil Rodgers, who lost in a playoff for the title to Bob Charles in 1963, had to rally for a 74.

BEST OF BRITONS

Platts, with a dramatic 32 on the final nine, grabbed a one-stroke lead over a trio of Britons tied at 69. They were Peter Jones, 24-year-old protégé of Henry Cotton; Jimmy Hume of Scotland; and David Bonthron, another Scot who got in through a withdrawal.

Bonthron got into the field when Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., scratched.

RELATIVELY EASY

The tough Hoylake course, baked by a hot sun, played relatively easy for the first round because of the absence of tricky winds and rain that normally whip the seaside links.

The course's 72 par has been broken but no winner of the Open ever has beaten 70 in a round over Hoylake. Bob Jones had a 70 in 1930.

TIED WITH BREWER

Tied with Brewer at 70 were a cordon of international stars, including Kel Nagle, the veteran Australian; Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina; Christy O'Connor of Ireland; Clive Clark, a 22-year-old Briton, and Australian Bruce Devlin, a regular on the U.S. tour.

Brewer appeared headed for a bundle when he went out in 39. But he rallied with a 31, nailing a birdie at the 10th hole.

"It was quite a finish," Brewer said. "I felt I was getting my Masters touch back."

On the two finishing holes he sank putts of 12 and 15 feet.

Nicklaus, who won the U.S. Open last month with some spectacular putting, couldn't get his borrowed, white-faced blade in line. He three-putted the second and missed a short putt at the 13th for his bogey. But he nailed birds at the fifth, 10th and 18th.

"I could have had a very low score if some of those putts had fallen. I missed hitting only one green in regulation, and I missed only two fairways."

Beman, Nicklaus' private pick for the title, went out in even par, but he sank a 35-foot putt for a birdie on the 11th and also birdied the long 16th.

At Belding of Toronto, only Canadian in the tournament, shot a 74.

Rockets Probe Weather

SASKATOON (CP) — Two Black Brant rockets and a huge balloon soared into the atmosphere above the Churchill, Man., rocket range Tuesday night and Wednesday carrying three University of Saskatchewan payloads.

The launchings, the third and fourth in a series of experiments conducted by the university's physics department, were reported successful.

The payloads are designed to provide information that may lead to a better understanding of weather patterns. Each payload weighs 175 pounds and is the heaviest yet carried by a Black Brant 3 vehicle.

More launchings are planned this year, but definite dates are not yet available.

tion isn't fiction and it wasn't lifted from the Police Gazette.

It happened in Victoria and was a catch — if crusty — headline on the front page of The Daily Colonist.

The paper, dated Feb. 8, 1925, was resurrected Wednesday from an old home being demolished in Victoria.

Next to the crashed fireman story is a short article reporting that Vancouverites were preparing for another Tong War.

CHINESE FACTION

Apparently 50 members of one Chinese faction met "behind closed doors" to draw 15 white beans and one black bean. Whoever got the black bean also got $5,000, a revolver and the name and address of a man to be rubbed out.

Locally, Kachmaninoff was to appear at the Royal Theatre and Victorians could watch for $1.

An ad for cars has an Essex-4 for sale at $1,565.

LITERARY SECTION

In a literary section, near the back of the paper, there is an in-depth article by a noted woman author, entitled, The Philanderer's Husband — If he flicks, so will I.

But the next headline, sensibly says, This instinctive procedure on the part of the wife is, without doubt, quite the most foolish.

The paper was found by Derek Spearing and Bob Bjarnason, both Victoria high Grade 12 students, in an Alpha Street home belonging to Bob Young of Victoria.

Six-Day Blast Starts Friday

By JIM HOFFMAN

Twenty-five Canadian, American and Japanese warships are converging on Victoria to give the city a big six-day blast, starting Friday.

The spectacular Centennial Naval Assembly program will rock the city with gunfire and the roar of the Golden Centennaires in a breath-taking aerobatic display over the Royal Roads area Wednesday.

On Saturday, ranks from the three national forces will offer the largest international parade ever held here, beginning at 10 a.m.

MID-CITY

The parade starts on Chatham Street, between Douglas and Government, goes south on Douglas to Yates, west on Yates to Government, and south on Government to Superior to disband.

On Saturday and Sunday all ships will be open to visitors from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. A naval band concert will be held at Beacon Hill Park Monday evening.

Wednesday, July 19, is the big day with most of the action.

FLEET REVIEW

At 9:30 a.m., Lieutenant-Governor Peckford will board the Canadian auxiliary vessel Endeavour at the CPR wharf in the Inner Harbour to review the fleet.

A 15-gun co-ordinated salute will be fired by HMCS Mackenzie, USS King and JMSDF Teruzuki at 10:25 a.m. The fleet review commences at 10:30 a.m. Lieutenant-Governor Peckford will pass through the five lines of ships massed off the Royal Roads anchorage. As the passes each ship, officers and crew will wave caps and give three cheers.

SHIPBOARD LUNCH

At 11:30 a.m., flag officers and commanding officers of participating ships attend a luncheon aboard CNV Endeavour.

At 12:30 p.m. the Endeavour

will proceed to HMC Dockyard, where the lieutenant-governor will leave the ship for Government House.

The dazzling grace of the Golden Centennaires will delight Victorians as the jets perform their 45-minute aerobatic display over the Royal Roads area in the evening at 8:30 p.m.

When dark falls, the ships will black out, then flick on lights at 10 p.m. for a nighttime illumination followed by a fireworks display at 10:15 p.m.

The ships will leave the Royal Roads area the next morning with a salient off the water, front beginning at 9:30 a.m., as they proceed to Vancouver for another assembly.

Among the Canadian ships are five destroyer escorts, HMCS Mackenzie, Yulston, Qu'Appelle, St. Croix and Columbus; and ships including the RCMP motor launch Victoria, the coast guard weather ship Quadra and naval auxiliary vessels.

Three American destroyers, the USS King, Chevalier, and Black, the assault ship Vancouver and the coast guard ship Yecona will form the American delegation.

From Japan will be the destroyers JDS Teruzuki, Yūdachi, Murasame and Shikishima.

Hospitality Offered To Visiting Sailors

Response already has been good from Victorians calling the Dockyard to act as hosts for Japanese and U.S. sailors.

About 2,500 visiting sailors and officers will be in town from Friday to Wednesday for centennial naval assembly.

Assembly officials are anxious that Victorians will entertain the guests from either navy in their homes.

The number to call is the Dockyard at 383-8231, extension 533, 321 or 517, between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m.

Open Saanich Meeting

Animals Bylaw Ready Tuesday

Saanich's revised animals by-law, the product of four months' work by the municipal planning department, will be unveiled at a special committee meeting next week.

The meeting of lands and planning committees will be held Tuesday night.

The revised bylaw incorporates many of the suggestions offered by citizens after the first draft was prepared earlier this year. Saanich received about 150 letters with recommendations for the control of animals.

While Tuesday night's meeting is open to the public, municipal officials hope that all suggestions for the bylaw have been received in writing by now. If the bylaw is approved at the committee level, it will be sent to council for adoption.

Alderman Pushes Civil Defence

Trained Force Essential

Recently returned from a two-week civil defence course in Ontario, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow says he is "completely sold" on the need for every city to have a force trained to meet disaster.

"Like a lot of other people I was pretty apathetic until I took the course at Amprior," he said Wednesday.

"But I am convinced now that every community should have a group of men and women highly trained to handle communications, transport and administration in the event of disaster.

"I'm not talking about disaster in the nuclear bomb sense but natural disaster which can strike any community," the alderman observed.

Referring to the tidal wave which struck the Aleutians several years ago, Ald. Edgelow added:

ONE EACH BLOCK

"At the time of the disaster the Aleutians were not too interested in an emergency measures organization but they sure are now. Natural disaster could strike Victoria or any other community and I would like to think we were ready to meet it if and when it came.

"Before the end of the month I intend to meet city and provincial officials to see what I can do to stir up some interest."

"My idea would be to have one person in every city block trained to act in the event of emergency. And there is no reason why that target should not be achieved if council will take the lead in encouraging public interest."

"I am prepared to instruct myself, if we can just get classes going," the alderman said.

Shadows Design Patterns

Sun pouring through canopy of city tourist information centre on Douglas forms intriguing shadow formation on sidewalk — and passersby are unaware of fact they are part of design. Photograph was taken from top of customs house, also on Douglas, with 40-mm telephoto lens, at warmest time of day Wednesday afternoon. — (William E. John)

Wingless Plane On Way

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A wingless plane designed to take a test pilot 100,000 feet high and plummet him down to a pinpoint landing has been turned over to the U.S. Air Force.

The craft, called a lifting body because its lift comes not from wings but from the shape of the body, was delivered Tuesday by the Martin Marietta Co.

The air force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration hope to find out in test flights during the next two years if the wingless planes can be used in manned space flight.

Lt. Gen. Charles H. Terhune Jr., vice commander of the air force systems command who accepted the craft from the company, said the use of lifting bodies could reduce the cost of space travel by doing away with the "need for complex launching facilities, expendable booster systems and vast recovery forces."

The Martin plane, designated the X-24A, is one of three wingless craft to be tested by the air force and NASA. It was built for the air force at a cost of $3,500,000, including testing.

It is intended as a research vehicle and there are no plans for it to achieve the speed needed to put it into orbit.

No Gun Fear, Mother Told Doctor

VANCOUVER (CP) — The white-haired mother of accused sniper Arthur John Towell, 35, said in court Wednesday she never considered it necessary to contact police about her son's gun collection.

Mrs. Leonarda Towell said that, although her son had a gun collection, she was assured that "things would go smoothly" if he kept taking drugs for epilepsy regularly.

Mrs. Towell was the first witness in the second day of an inquest into the deaths last Thursday of David Webster, 31, a university of British Columbia assistant professor, and his wife Marlene, 30. They were out down by sniper fire in the backyard of their Vancouver home.

Towell was charged with two counts of capital murder and two counts of attempted capital murder. Two other victims are recovering from gunshot wounds.

Mrs. Towell began her testimony by denying statements made Tuesday by Dr. Henry Chong, her son's doctor, that she had come to him because of fear of her son having guns.

"No one made any suggestion that the guns should be taken away from him," she said. "I told the doctor we were not afraid of Arthur's guns."

She said the doctor advised her to carry on giving her son pills for epilepsy, and keep life running as smoothly as possible.

She said no one ever suggested that her son's having guns was dangerous.

In testimony Tuesday, Dr. Chong said he had warned police that lives might be in danger if Arthur was allowed to keep his weapons. He said he had warned Mrs. Towell to this effect.

Earlier, city prosecutor Stewart McMorris told city coroner Glen McDonald he had been informed by psychiatrists that Towell was mentally ill to the point where he was certifiable.

Police testified Towell had 15 guns in the house, and the suspect weapon was an Italian semi-automatic military rifle.

Cause of the deaths of the Websters was unnatural, by gunshot wounds, city pathologist Dr. T. R. Hampton testified.

The inquest continues today.

Merger Splitting

VANCOUVER (CP) — The rightwing Republican Party of Canada, formed this year by a merger of the Republic and Free Trade parties, is splitting in two.

Campaign manager Kenneth Barber, who used to run the Republic party, has advised leader Gerard Gosselin, the former Free Trade party head, he will nominate candidates on his own because of "undemocratic" procedures.

Spotted on FBI List

Escaped U.S. Killer Found in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — A 39-year-old convicted killer who escaped from San Quentin penitentiary in 1964 was arrested after he was identified from a picture in a detective magazine.

Wallace Clayton Hakes was sentenced to five years to life for a 1958 murder at La Mesa, Calif. He served only six years when he escaped.

Hakes, an avid flyer since he was 17, was arrested Tuesday night at his job in a suburban Malton aircraft plant. Identification was made by a crop-duster who had met Hakes at the nearby Buttonville Airport Monday.

Police said the crop-duster had read an article in a detective magazine on the FBI's 19 most wanted men.

Disney Film Date Set

A nature movie made on Vancouver Island last year and starring Victoria actors has been scheduled for broadcast on a national U.S. television network Dec. 10.

The Wild Heart will be seen on Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color on NBC, it was announced Wednesday. The Dec. 10 schedule date is tentative.

The movie was made last summer in Victoria, at Long Beach and in the Gulf Islands by Grey Owl Productions Inc. The unit has produced numerous nature films for the Disney organization.

Stars are Kitty Porteous, now 10, of 1311 Franklin Terrace, and Andrew Penn, now 13, of 4045 Rainbow Road, Saanich.

The children play brother and sister who become involved in caring for wild animals.

Kitty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Porteous. Andrew is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Michael Penn.

In supporting roles are Victoria actors Stanley Bowles and Margaret Martin, who play parents of the children.

Near Royal Oak

Industry Estate Sketched

By JOHN MATTERS

Saanich planners envision a large light industrial estate south of Royal Oak shopping centre, it was learned Wednesday.

It could be the site for warehousing and light manufacturing industries that could take some of the tax load of home-owners, said municipal planner Tom Loney.

The boundaries of the site haven't been drawn, but it will be "very large" and will provide a selection of sites of different sizes, he said.

"Our ideas are first enough, so that we are drawing up a detailed proposal," said Mr. Loney.

Reeve Hugh Curtis said light industry was badly needed in Saanich but it had been difficult to find locations in such a scattered residential community.

"Our problem is that we have pockets of residential development which were permitted to scatter before a planning department was organized," explained the reeve.

"And it's always difficult to locate industries next to homes," the reeve said another problem associated with industry is the uncertainty over the department of highways' plans for a freeway.

"This is a serious complicating factor," he said.

Despite protests from residents of the Royal Oak area, council earlier this summer gave a developer permission to build an "Eaton's" warehouse south of the intersection of Royal Oak Avenue and Patricia Bay Highway.

The department of highways refused to allow trucks to turn off Glenford and, as a result, Saanich had to over-ride objections from home-owners who didn't want the vehicles using residential streets.

Mr. Loney said he was uncertain whether the proposed site should first be acquired by the municipality, then subdivided. It was one method of strictly controlling development, he suggested.

The assessed value of land and improvements in Saanich is $121,531,691, only 5 per cent of which is commercial or industrial development.

Jack Lindsay, municipal assessor, said industrial assessments are "quite limited" and have remained at about 5 per cent of the total for years.

"As the municipality has grown, industrial and commercial development has had a static relationship with other types of land and improvements," he explained.

"We simply couldn't afford to. We have used a very expensive chemical with success in the swimming areas and we just had to hope for the best in other parts of the lake," he added.

The show will be presented by the B.C. Centennial Committee and the Canadian Water Ski Committee.

Medallion Worth $100

Saanich Treasure Found

First of the five medallions in the Rover Centennial Quest has been found at the end of the railway tracks by the Saanich liquor store.

The finder, George Carter, 642 Canterbury, a postal supervisor, will be going on holidays in August. "The money should come in handy," he said.

There is a $100 award for finding a medallion in this treasure hunt, sponsored by the Greater Victoria Centennial Society.

There are four more medallions to be found, worth $100 each. They are in Central Saanich, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Victoria.

Marijuana Sentences Suspended

A stern sentence would be unjust and prison an unlikely place to reform two young first offenders, Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake said Tuesday while suspending sentence on two young men in a marijuana case.

Michael Hartley, 20, 578 West Saanich Road, and David McCullum, 20, of 1510 Dallas Road, were placed on bond for two years following their earlier conviction on a charge of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Judge Drake agreed earlier in the hearing with defense counsel that the trafficking was not a serious part of the charge and more of a technical matter.

BOTH 'VICTIMS'

In his summation before sentence he added that he felt that both accused had, to some extent, been the victims of the "evil influence" who was previously sentenced.

"My only doubt is that my action will not serve as a deterrent. My action may be open to criticism but it is my decision and I am convinced that no useful purpose would be served by a prison sentence."

"However, it must be realized by both of you that maturity of mind does not depend on such superficial stimuli and furthermore, that the law is there and must be obeyed," Judge Drake added.

BAGS FOUND

Three youths were charged when police found them and two others in a deserted house at 2019 McCallum Road in Saanich on April 20.

Police seized 11 small bags and two larger bags all containing marijuana.

Two men were sentenced, one to a term of 18 months, and a third, Cyril McCallum, 20, of 3122 Yew Street, found not guilty.

MORE USED

In a later hearing McCullum and Hartley were convicted and remanded for sentence.

Speaking Tuesday in reference to the charges, crown counsel Rodney Taylor said there was a "distressing" increase in the use of marijuana in the Victoria area.

"It seems that a growing segment of our community feels that it can ignore the law by taking marijuana. It is a most disturbing trend," Mr. Taylor added.

CHARACTER WITNESSES

A number of character witnesses spoke on behalf of the two accused Tuesday.

Testimony was given for McCullum by Gordon Harwood, garage proprietor; John R. McKibben, service station operator; and Dennis Humphries, real estate salesman.

Fernand Colonibia, realtor; John S. Clark, teacher; Robert F. Hearst, instrument technician, and Mrs. Hearst spoke on behalf of Hartley.

Alan Macfarlane acted for McCullum and Willem van Cuylenburg for Hartley.

Thistles Like Attention

Tired of weeding his battle against thistles in his garden, James Kirkwood, 278 Superior, decided to see what would happen if he cultivated and fertilized the weeds. Result: His 10-year-old daughter, Anne, is charmed by thistle plants 10 feet high—(William E. John)

Engineers at Hospitals Serve Strike Notice

St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee hospitals Wednesday received notice that their operating engineers could go out on strike any time after Friday morning.

The 48-hour notice, necessary under B.C.'s labor laws, arrived by registered mail.

MAINTAIN STANDARD

"This does not mean a strike will necessarily take place on Friday morning," said Dr. Emert Van Tilburg, executive director and administrator of St. Joseph's Hospital.

"However, a strike could be called at any time within three months but we wish to assure the people of Victoria that every effort will be made to maintain the same high standard of patient care."

'FIRST DUTY'

"This must be considered our first duty, and we anticipate the union will co-operate in this matter," added Dr. Van Tilburg.

Fifteen members of the In-Victoria hospitals. The main international Union of Operating dispute is wages for third class Engineers would be involved at engineers.

Missing Girl Sought Up-Island

Marthanne (Marti) Hull, 24, of 1880 Wanda, last seen in Beacon Hill Park with a girl friend is being sought up-island.

She placed her brother later and said she was going up island for two weeks and she was all right.

She is 5-foot 7 inches, weighs 130 pounds, has dark brown hair, brown eyes, a fair complexion and freckles.

She was wearing a dark brown sweater and light blue bell bottom slacks.

Anyone having any information about the girl or seeing her is asked to get in touch with the Saanich police, 288-0321, or the nearest police office.

She has been missing since July 4.

But Council May Approve

Neighborly Nay For Playing Field

Only seven of approximately 60 residents of the area want Oak Bay Rugby Club's playing field on Walema Avenue in Saanich.

The negative feeling came out Wednesday night during a lively open-air meeting on the 4.12 acres the club wants rezoned.

The chairman was Saanich Coun. Leslie Passmore, who has opposed the rugby club's plans. The vote was taken at the end of the meeting.

The residents opposed the scheme with arguments that it would disturb their quiet, residential neighborhood and it would create additional traffic on streets.

The rugby club reiterated its promises that a clubhouse on the site wouldn't be used for noisy parties and people living in the area could use the field.

Saanich council, which first rejected the rezoning proposal, is reconsidering the action and may approve a bylaw allowing the playing field.

They Are So Hard to Find!Poets Have Sorely Neglected Dazzling, Clever Green Peas

EILEEN LEAROLD

Poets write of roses, artists paint apples and peaches — but who has ever written anything in praise of green peas?

Green peas are so clever and so beautiful I wonder they have not been immortalized. Look how sweetly they grow on their vines. What tender, shiny houses they live in, in such orderly rows.

A pea is never lonely. A pea sits in a delightful little canoe, safely and sweetly with its family around it. No wonder green peas are so well adjusted.

Is anything in this world as ravishing as peas fresh from a field? Tender and warm from sunshine, washed by rain, rocked in their little green cradles by the wind? Here in the first Ode To A Green Pea:

Oh dear little pea
In shell so green
You look to me
Like an emerald Queen.

Oh clever green pea
In your tiny canoe
How can anyone be
As smart as you.

I never did see
A pea in the end
As sweet as you
In your little pod.

Oh pea so fair
On your tender vine
You dazzle me—
Will you be mine?

The end of this ode is rather sad, I must admit, but then that's life. Everything eats something else.

Ah, me! I do like fresh green peas. But while they are sweet, they are hard to find.

People are so busy popping them into freezers, it seems impossible to find the RAW ones.

Yes, all the great gourmets of this world prefer raw peas, and in fact some of them like to eat the shells when they are fresh from a garden.

About a week ago a friend of mine (only a true friend would do a thing like this) gave me some raw peas-in-the-pod. God only knows where she found them, as they are pure gold. No doubt she has a farmer friend.

Since then, I've travelled all over Victoria — up Douglas, down Fort. Out Quadra — even to Brentwood, looking for peas in their pods.

There are some tired ones around the stores, but according to a Safeway manager the ones I saw at the time came from Puget Sound, and by the time we get them locally they have a few wrinkles and seem a bit starchy.

Where are the lovely local raw peas gone? Is there no farmer who will sell the citizens some peas? It's very sad to think they are all going to freezers.

Greenwood-SpotswoodSan Francisco Honeymoon

Following their recent wedding in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Oak Bay, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cairns Greenwood left on a honeymoon trip flying south to San Francisco. The couple also cruised the San Juan Islands before returning to make their home at 1183 Colville Road.

The bride, the former Sandra Lee Spotswood, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dupren, 285 Hinchey Road, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Greenwood, 1140 Clarke Road, Brentwood Bay. Arrangements of orange carnations decorated the church for the service conducted by Canon Hywel Jones.

During the ceremony, soloist Stephen Hastings sang "Hear My Prayer."

Given in marriage by her stepfather, the bride wore a dainty gown of point d'Alencon lace, fashioned on empire lines. The skirt was in sheath style. Added interest was created by a lace capelet which swept back on train. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted softly from a small floral cap. Orange feathered carnations and white ribbon formed her crescent bouquet.

Frosted nylon tulle in printed aqua, yellow, pink and orange over orange tulle was worn by maid of honor Miss Penny Grigg. Matching prints over aqua tulle formed the gown of bridesmaids Mrs. Roger Hollick and Mrs. Mel Spotswood, and bridesmaid, Miss Anne Greenwood. Their headpieces were self-fabric boues, edged with tulle, and they carried white feathered carnations in their crescent bouquets. Keith Vickers, Vancouver, was best man, and ushering the guests were Roger Hollick, the bride's brother Mel Spotswood, both of Victoria, and Mike Warnock, Vancouver.

Lloyd Murray proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following in the Victoria Golf Club. The three-tiered wedding cake which centred the head table was made by Mrs. Murray. Topping the centerpiece was a "good luck" horseshoe, which had decorated the wedding cake of the groom's parents.

A camel hair skirt and blouse of blue and camel chain, topped with a matching camel coat, was worn by the new Mrs. Greenwood for travelling.

Governors of Cosmopolitan Club and their wives from various parts of Canada and States were caught by photographer before having dinner in Empress Hotel. Host was Mr. Art Hillsden, Victoria club president. Gathering (left to right) Mr. Lyman Thorpe and Mrs. Thorpe from Rockford, Illinois; Mr. Hillsden and his wife; Mr. Elmer Peters, president of Cosmopolitan International from Wichita, Kansas and his wife, Mr. Thornton Cross of Edmonton and Mrs. Messerschmidt and Mr. Art Messerschmidt, treasurer of the local club.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: The outburst from the New York attorney who complained about the too tight, too short skirts on broad-beamed women prompts my first letter to a newspaper.

He has a point, and I would not deny it, but I feel the blame should be placed where it belongs — squarely on the manufacturers of women's clothes. To begin with, the manufacturers operate on the theory that all women are built like (God forbid) Twiggy What's-Her-name. If my 16-year-old daughter was five feet six and weighed 51 pounds, I'd rush her to the hospital.

Any middle-aged woman who has tried to buy clothes lately knows that the dresses are cut for flat-chested, slim-hipped bean poles. Last week I spent the better part of two days shopping for a simple afternoon shift. Everything I tried on was too short and too tight across the bust. I weigh 115 and am not over endowed. Finally, in desperation, the saleswoman sighed, "As you can see Madame, bosoms are out this year."

So please, Ann Landers, put the blast on the people who manufacture women's dresses. Ask them to give some consideration to the middle-aged female who wants to look stylish but not Way-Out Kooksville. Thank you. — VOICE OF AMERICA.

Dear Voice: Here's your letter, and I hope Women's Wear Daily and other publications will take time out from assaulting Mrs. Hubert Humphrey (who makes many of her own dresses and does a beautiful job of it) to take note of your letter and pass the word.

My future husband says I should wear what I please. I want to keep peace in the family, but I think it is dumb to wear a bridal gown and veil in the pastor's study when only 14 people will be present. Please advise. — JUST PRACTICAL.

Dear Just: Wear whatever you wish and don't let anyone put you on the defensive. The notion that a white wedding gown is proof of virginity is absurd.

I say this is a lot of RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—Conflict is sharpening in the capital of the poverty-ridden state of Pernambuco between ladies of high fashion and legislative deputies with low opinions of high skirts. Workmen See 'Mod' Show

By TRUDY KEMP
Workmen dropped their tools to watch a fashion show.

The fashions were smart and modern — some a "way out." The setting was steeped in history. To top it the weather was perfect for the outdoor show, the first organized event held in the newly renovated Bastion Square.

Several hundred Victorians and visitors interrupted their shopping and browsing to visit the Square Tuesday afternoon and watch the fashion show put on by the shops in the Village Fair.

A surprise and welcome visitor to the show was Mrs. George R. Pearkes, wife of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor.

There were sophisticated fall ensembles from Roma's, mod fashions for young people from the Unicorn, original designs from the Boutique, and the ever-popular import knits and wool sweater-skirt outfits from the Treasure Chest.

Many of the visitors to the Square took advantage of the tea tables set up in front of the Coach and Four to have their afternoon tea while watching the show. Others stood on the steps or sat in the chairs arranged in the upper part of the square for the gala affair.

The workmen! They peered out of the upper storey windows of Village Fair and watched the show.

All the shops in Village Fair participated in the afternoon's successful event which was opened by Victor Williams. Commentating the fashion show was Adele Lewis and John Dunbar was guest soloist. Background organ music was played by Dave Napier.

Gown from France Worn for Wedding

A suit of white peau de laine, imported from France, was worn by Evelyn Leah Edwards when she exchanged marriage vows and rings with Kim Maxwell Hiseock recently.

The suit, which was made by the bride and her mother, featured scalloped detailing at the front. Sleeves were wrist-length. The only jewelry accents to the outfit were a pearl necklace, gift of the groom, and an heirloom opal and diamond ring, belonging to the bride's great-aunt. She wore a hat of fine white straw with a crown of pleated tulle. A gardenia and gladiolus and white streamers topped the tulle which she carried.

Caron Byland Jones conducted the service in St. Mary's Anglican Church, which was decorated with banners of gladness and red roses. Pink roses and white ribbons marked the pews. Organist Mr. Eric Edwards, bride's uncle.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. Lionel H. Edwards, 2841 Taylor Street, and Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hiseock, 1331 Arm Street. Mr. Edwards gave his daughter in marriage. Maid of honor Miss Barbara Pinner, and bridesmaid Miss Carol Hiseock, sister of the groom, chose sleeveless dresses of jade green Swiss cotton shantung with scalloped accents at the neckline. They wore white sheer hats and corsages of white roses.

Best man was CHM A. Edwards, the bride's brother, and ushers were Barry Warner and Melvin Elrose.

Basket of gladiolus and red roses flanked the fireplace of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel for the reception. A three-tier wedding cake centred the lace-covered head table, and arrangements of ferns and white roses completed the decor.

Jerry Purcell, the bride's great uncle proposed the toast.

For travelling on honeymoon up-island the bride donned a navy blue summer coat over her suit. Navy accessories and a white orchid corsage complemented the ensemble.

Upon their return, the newlyweds will live at 217 Government Street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Ray, 1849 Townley Street, recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at home of their daughter, Mrs. R. S. Fisher, 6444 Road. Married in England, couple came to Canada in 1918. Present at party were seven children, 11 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Speech was given by eldest son Mr. Ronald Ray, and youngest son Phillip Ray was also present. From out of town came Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Kornelson (a daughter) from Saskatchewan; grandchildren Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Halpen and family of Tacoma; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill from Port Angeles and son-in-law, Mr. Art Halpen from Seattle. — (Chevron)

Basham-Ward

A wide band of peau de sole emphasized the empire waistline of the gown worn by Brenda Joan Ward when she became the bride of Frank Charles Basham.

The gown, fashioned of delicate Chantilly lace over tulle, featured an A-line flare to the skirt. Seemingly outlined the bodice neckline and sleeves ended in lily points. Her veil misted to chapel-length from a floral headpiece and she carried a prayer book, topped with stephanotis and streamers. As "something old," she wore a gold cross, belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. E. Bithell.

Arrangements of carnations in white and gold tones, Esther Read daisies and snapdragons decorated St. Peter's Anglican Church for the service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs.

Ronald F. Ward, 3854 Quadra Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip C. Basham, 1800 San Pedro Avenue. Dr. Kenneth M. King officiated at the service, assisted by Rev. Ernest W. S. Gilbert. Mr. Ward gave his daughter in marriage.

Maid of honor, Miss Gwen Walker, wore an A-line gown of pale blue sheer over green tulle. Similar outfits in floral turquoise and mauve chiffon over mauve tulle were worn by bridesmaids, the Misses Michele Price and the bride's sister, Susan Ward, and junior bridesmaid Wendy Basham, sister of the groom. Their cascade bouquets of yellow marguerites were accented with pearl leaves. Douglas Strongbarm was best man and ushering the guests were Robert Wedd and brothers of the principals, Alan Basham and David Ward. Ring-bearers were Paul Ward and Daniel Basham.

M. Palmer proposed the toast to the bride at the reception following in Holyrood House.

For travelling on honeymoon to the lower mainland, the new Mrs. Basham donned a three-piece suit of turquoise linen.

Hunter-Johnson

An oversight of Chantilly lace, scalloped at the hemline, was fashioned on train to enhance the gown of ligoda erpe worn by Anne Elsie Johnson when she became the bride of James Stewart Hunter. The same lace formed the bodice of the gown, which was fashioned with a square neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. Her veil misted to chapel-length from a coronet shimmering with pearls and crystals and she carried Verano roses and stephanotis in her colonial bouquet. "Something old" was her mother's wedding ring.

St. Aidan's United Church was decorated in a gay floral theme when Rev. A. G. MacLeod heartily marriage vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson, 2083 Volmer Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hunter, 1631 McRae Avenue. Mr. Johnson gave his daughter in marriage. Soloist Mrs. Betty Heard sang "O Perfect Love" during the service, accompanied by organist Mrs. Vera Barclay.

Peau de sole roses and streamers emphasized the empire waistlines of the gowns worn by the bride's attendants. The outfits were of lace over tulle in centennial rose shade. Bridesmaids, the Misses Diane Henderson and Barbara Robinson had pink daisies entwined in their hair and they carried elegant bouquets of dusty pink carnations.

Best man was William Robert Hunter. Ushering the guests to their pews were Clifford Knowles, Alan Longley and Ronald Johnson. Bells and My of the valley topped the three-tier wedding cake which centred the head table at the reception following in the Union Centre. Kenneth Robinson proposed the toast to the bride and Geoff Venables' orchestra played music for dancing.

For travelling on honeymoon to Banff and Montana, the new Mrs. Hunter donned a navy blue linen suit which she accented with white accessories. Virginia commotion on corsage completed the outfit.

The couple will make their home at 1515 Edgeware Road.

CHICAGO — Sole survivor Coram Amuro, 24, of the hospital dormitory massacre of eight nurses a year ago Friday and the families of the nurses have sued for damages totalling $4,775,000.

The suit asks $2,500,000 from convicted killer Richard Speck, who is fighting the death penalty, $1,500,000 from the girls' hospital for alleged negligence, and $175,000 from the tavern where police said Speck drank before the murders.

Attorney Constant Wachowski, acting for all the plaintiffs, said Speck has received royalties from articles, books and possibly a movie and "we want to make sure he will never make a profit from this atrocious act."

Police Raid Misses Suspects

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two of the most-wanted gunmen in the U.S. Wednesday apparently succeeded in eluding authorities who surrounded an apartment building in nearby Cudahy and bombarded it with tear gas.

When federal agents and police burst into the apartment where Victor Bono and Florencio Matton were believed to have been hiding, it was too late. The littered rooms were empty.

Bono, 28, and Matton, 33, were sought in the execution last month of U.S. border patrolmen George Asrak, 21, and Theodore Newton, 25.

The bodies of the patrolmen were discovered handcuffed to a stove in a mountain cabin near Anza, Calif. June 19, two days after they disappeared while on patrol near the California-Mexico border.

One tenant, Mrs. Yvonne McDaniel, who lives just above the raided apartment, said two men had rented it about a week ago. She said she did not recognize them, but thinks one of the men might have been Bono.

Two other suspects, Harold Montoya, 30, and his brother Alfred, 33, are in custody in Tucson, Ariz. They allegedly told authorities Bono and Matton killed the two patrolmen when the officers caught them smuggling 880 pounds of marijuana into the U.S. from Mexico.

The court said she died in a heart attack while Kamper's car in 1964 due to his "passionate kisses," in which he squeezed her neck with his hand.

Gougers Rapped At Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — Eugene Gagnon, a south shore motel operator, was fined $1,000 — the maximum possible — Wednesday for over-charging a New York City couple who visited Montreal in May to see Expo.

Mr. Gagnon was also assessed court costs and given two days to pay the fine, with the option of going to jail for a month.

Court was told Mr. and Mrs. A. Davis paid $64.50 for a two-day stay at Motel Gagnon.

Mrs. Vivian Webster Phillips of Florida, a concessionaire, and her operator, Albert Singer of Montreal, were sentenced to pay fines of $300 or spend 30 days in jail for operating a "coin table" at Expo's La Ronde amusement area.

The game is specifically prohibited in the Criminal Code.

Year-End Upswing Seen in Prosperity

PARIS (CP)—Prosperity has taken a split in the Western world but a team of 20 economists Wednesday predicted a new upswing by the end of the year.

The decline has hit both Europe and North America, the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development reported as it launched a new half-year analysis of conditions of its 10 member countries, which includes Canada.

The organization, with an annual budget of some $20,000,000, put one-quarter of its professional staff of some 200 economists to work on the new report which described the slowdown as significant, resulting mainly from policy curbs in the United States, West Germany and Britain.

FRESH RISE

Resumption of economic growth, following the drop in the second half of 1966 and the first half of 1967, is based mainly on signs of a fresh economic rise in the U.S.

Some of the organization's top economists said they have full confidence in U.S. expansion. But if the American government decides to impose new restraints—such as higher taxes or higher interest rates—a drop in the domestic appetite for goods could cause new worries for the Western community.

A decline of 10 per cent in U.S. imports could reduce Canadian exports by more than six per cent, the economists estimated.

NEARLY OVER

"But the slowdown should be nearly over and by the end of the year a more normal rate of growth should be resumed," said Christopher Dow, the organization's assistant secretary-general.

One of his colleagues later added that the economic picture for both sides of the Atlantic was particularly bad during the April-June period. It was one of the most depressing since the Second World War.

U.S. IMPACT

In the U.S., the decline was linked with production pressures caused by the Vietnam war. In Britain it was connected with the government's planned economic freeze to curb the domestic market and push more goods abroad. In West Germany it was a plain case of an overheated economy and perhaps too much government pressure to impose brakes sharply.

The U.S. decline has some significant impact on the Canadian economy and despite prompt Canadian activity, "may remain relatively moderate in 1967, with some rise in unemployment," the organization's 90-page document said.

Earlier this year the organization expressed concern over indications of inflation in Canada and called on the government to arrest a rise in costs and prices. Labor costs rose much faster in Canada this year than in many other countries, including the U.S.

The new document, published today, showed that earnings in Canadian factories made the fourth highest rise of all the 10 member countries which include Western Europe, North America and Japan. In the 12-month period ending in the spring of 1967, Japan showed the biggest rise of 11.7 per cent. Germany came second with 6.1, France third with 5.8 and Canada fourth with 5.7. The rise in the U.S. was 4.2.

Canada List Names 95 Incentive Areas

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government Wednesday issued a new list of 95 areas across Canada designed for special employment incentives.

The list eliminates northeast Halifax county, where the job outlook has improved, and adds 15 districts—eight in Quebec, five in Ontario and one each in Nova Scotia and Manitoba. B.C.'s total is unchanged at three—Kelowna, Penticton and Vernon.

Despite Bennett View

Ottawa Pushes Carter Studies

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance department studies of the Carter royal commission report on taxation are being pressed forward in preparation for first steps in a general overhaul of tax laws, possibly this winter, a government source said Wednesday.

The groundwork is being pushed actively and vigorously, despite the view of at least one provincial premier, quoting some of his colleagues, that the controversial and sweeping Carter report is a dead issue.

IN VICTORIA

Premier Bennett of British Columbia made the statement in Victoria on his return from last week's meeting with Prime Minister Pearson and eight of the other nine premiers in conjunction with the Queen's visit. Prairie premiers had met a week earlier to discuss the Carter recommendations and their implications on resource development industry. The western premiers were fearful that the proposals, if implemented, would stymie resource development.

The royal commission, headed by Toronto tax expert

Kenneth Carter, recommended consolidation of corporate and personal income taxes. Mr. Bennett was quoted as saying after his visit to Ottawa that he had come to the conclusion "the Carter report is dead as such because it was a package deal." It would hurt jobs in B.C. and across Canada, he said.

Garden Notes

Color It Green

By M. V. CHESNUT

There is nothing like a touch of ammonium sulphate fertilizer occasionally through the midsummer months to ginger up the lawn and keep it a fresh green color. This is a cheap chemical, running around 15 cents per pound in small quantities, but it is powerful stuff, with a 33-0-0 formula, and a little of it goes a long way. Ammonium sulphate comes in crystals, looking rather like granulated white sugar.

Trouble is, sulphate of ammonia is so powerful, it is dangerous to go scattering it dry over the lawn, as it will scorch the grass to a crisp if you are the least bit heavy handed in spreading it.

For this reason, I prefer to play it safe and give my lawn its midsummer tonic in liquid form, dissolving the fertilizer in water at the rate of half a cupful per gallon of water. This amount will cover about five square yards, and it can be applied with a watering can with absolutely no danger of burning the grass with an overdose.

This lawn tonic will be even more effective if a little iron is added to the solution. You can use sulphate of iron, two tablespoonfuls per gallon — this is a green salt, inexpensive and available at most of the larger garden shops — or if you want to go first class, there is a special iron tonic for plants called Sequestrene 330 Fe which is longer-lasting in the soil but is considerably more expensive.

In treating a sizeable lawn, mixing up the tonic and lugging a heavy watering can around can be a real job of work, and as I am violently allergic to any form of gardening which involves physical effort, I have invested in a hose-end sprayer which takes most of the hard work out of the job.

This is a one-quart mason jar with a plastic lid fitted with a spreading nozzle and a hose connection. A small tube dips down into the mason jar, sucking up the contents and mixing it with the hose water while you sprinkle the lawn. Nothing could be simpler or easier, but there are a few little techniques of operation which should be watched.

In the first place, you have to make up the solution to about four times the normal strength, as the basic solution will be further diluted with the hose water. This means two cupfuls of ammonium sulphate plus eight cups sulphate of iron per gallon of water. I mix the solution in a plastic bucket and keep it handy for refilling the mason jar of the hose-end sprayer.

There is a little air hole in the right side of the hose-end sprayer nozzle which must be kept covered with the finger as you spray; if you lift your finger and admit air, the sprayer stops sucking up the fertilizer solution and delivers plain water.

Under the stimulating effect of this midsummer tonic, your lawn grass should soon turn a bright paddy green. I have heard gardeners refer to this as an "unhealthy" green, which I think is a lot of nonsense. It is the same bright, fresh, spring-like green which you get in a meadow after it has been burnt over, and for the same reason — a good supply of plant food of a type which is quickly assimilated by the plants.

There is nothing harmful in the use of ammonium sulphate on the lawn providing — and I lay particular stress on this — that the first early spring feed of the year is a complete and balanced fertilizer such as Vigoro, Frenzo, Lawn Green or the like.

Demand Widespread, Says ART BUCHWALD

Egyptian Officers Wooed

One of the fascinating offshoots of the Israeli-Arab war is the sudden interest now being shown by the different intelligence agencies in recruiting Egyptian military officers.

The Middle East is teeming with recruiters, all of whom are competing with each other for the services of the elite Egyptian army and air force corps.

My informant, who just returned from Cairo, told me, "The CIA has a shopping list which calls for 150 Egyptian generals and 250 colonels. They'll even take more if they can get them."

"What does the CIA want to do with them?"

"It's my understanding that they want to drop them on North Vietnam to advise the Ho forces on how to win the war."

"What an ingenious scheme. With the Egyptians advising the North Vietnamese, the war will be over in no time."

"Exactly. But the CIA is having trouble. The Soviet Union also has a recruiting team in Cairo. They're trying to sign up the entire Egyptian general staff and sent it through a third country into Red China. If they can get enough Egyptian generals working with the Red Chinese, the Russians can neutralize Red China without firing a shot."

"The Soviets are always trying to get into the act," I said.

"That isn't all. The Indians are trying to recruit some Egyptian officers to give to the Pakistanis as a gift, and the Albanians are trying to get an Egyptian general to head up the Yugoslav war college. There are so many demands being made for Egyptian military know-how that Nasser is getting very worried."

"Why doesn't the CIA recruit its Egyptian officers from the ones captured by the Israelis in the war?"

"Because the Israelis are dead set against the Egyptian officers going back to any country other than Egypt."

"But why?" I asked.

"Nasser has promised that he will fight Israel again. The Israelis want the same Egyptian officers in command of Egypt's armed forces if hostilities break out again. That is why Israel is treating them so well."

"The Israelis are even making wholesale trades. 10,000 Egyptian officers for one Israeli corporal-cook — just so the Egyptian officers will be back at their commands before rebuffed fighting breaks out."

"As a matter of fact, the Israelis let many officers escape in the Sinai so they could return to Cairo and start rebuilding the army."

"Israel knows what it's doing," I said.

"The CIA is getting some of the stragglers, but the top officers, the ones who planned the defence of the Sinai, are hard to come by because they're so much in demand."

"Couldn't the CIA recruit Egyptian officers from those who can't return to Cairo because they handled their assignments so badly?"

"No you see, in the retreat the generals who fouled up the most got to Cairo first, so they were able to tell their version of what happened before the rest of the army got home. In order for Nasser to stay in power, he had to back them up. So the ones who goofed the most, and have the greatest value to the intelligence agencies, are still in their jobs."

"Wouldn't it be a wonderful world if all the armies were staffed by Egyptian officers?" I said.

"That," my informant said, "is the only solution to peace in our time."

He's Busy, Busy, Busy

LONDON (NANA) — Before he flew to South America with Leslie Gilbert, I lunched with Bud Ornstein, to discuss the 30 or so pictures Paramount will make this year out of the United States and Canada. Bud, who brought Tom Jones, the Beatles and the James Bond pictures to United Artists, is in charge of these pictures for Paramount. His trip is to find locations for The Adventurers which Gilbert will direct from the Harold Robbins best seller.

"Right now in London," said Bud with pride, "we have The Kiss of Mrs. Blossom, starring Shirley MacLaine, Smashing Time with Lynn Begg and Rita Tushnet, and Up the Junction with newcomer Susan Kendall. During the recent Cannes film festival, Bud, on behalf of Paramount, bought Pouchou and put Miss Kendall under contract with director Peter Collinson. "It cost only $100,000 to make," said the executive jubilantly.

"In Rome," he continued, "we have Diabolik, Romeo and Juliet and Barabara. The last with Jane Fonda. Michael York plays Tybalt in Romeo." (York follows John Barrymore who made the movie version in Hollywood with Norma Shearer and Lewis Howard. There was a British Romeo starring Laurence Harvey.) "Then," said Ornstein, "Michael York will make his third picture for us, Strange Affair (He's in Smashing Time). There's Benjamin, filming in the Cognac region of France starring Catherine Deneuve (terribly grieved over the tragic death of her sister Françoise Berling in a car accident). Michelle Morgan is also starred and there is a woman producer, for a change, Madame Buddart.

Also coming up under the aegis of Ornstein, Darling Idi, in Ireland, Spain and France and starring Julie Andrews, with Blake Edwards directing; Flight of the Dancing Bear, about Czarist Russia; Soap, a comedy by the late Evelyn Waugh with British TV star Harry Ward playing a newspaper man; The Bandit, Dase de Lauretis producing in Italy with beautiful Maria Grazia Buccella starred.

And, high on the list, Villa Rides, with Robert Mitchum and Yul Brynner as Villa, Robert playing a barnstorming pilot of the era.

"Why this sudden spurt in European production?" I asked. To which Bud, who only recently joined Paramount, replied, "It's like moving into a new house where there's no oil for the heating furnace. It's like filling it up."

Around town: Leslie Green who should be making more films. She's good in everything she does. She is passing the time changing the decor of her house in Knightsbridge. The last time I was in it, Leslie served tea in what she then described as "Her French (red velvet and gilt mirrors) boudoir." The red velvet and the gilt mirrors have gone. It is now all white and antique gold and elegantly simple. Sandra Dee is expected in London, pausing for a couple of days and then on to the Berlin film festival.

Sean Connery's last robbery — making a total of eight — was clearly the work of vandals. They tore everything to shreds and did about $25,000 worth of damage. Producer Elliott Eastman and his wife have had two robberies. In one, the housekeeper caught the thief walking off with the goods and he dropped them and fled. The last robbery was in their Ploceville penthouse into which they haven't yet moved. There was no furniture so the mean thief contented him or herself by taking the just installed draperies. And you know how long it takes to have them made and put in!

The Berlin critics were unkind to the movie version of Oh Dad, Poor Dad, etc., shown at the Berlin film festival. And with reason. I have already told you what I think of this awful movie. I will just add that I wish Ronald Russell, one of my favorite film stars, had not made it. This one will take time to live down.

Freedom—for Me!

My old friend, J. Hawley Smoot, has been bleating about "freedom" for more than 30 years. He has always called for less government interference.

What J. Hawley Smoot means is less interference with him. He's quite content to see much more government interference with other people.

He wants a government crackdown on pugnacious labor leaders. He would like to have the cops round up all the beatniks and put them away somewhere.

J. Hawley Smoot thinks that school dropouts ought to be forced to go to work. Teachers who wear beards and quote "inflammatory" literature in classrooms ought to be dismissed. Theatre owners who show dirty movies ought to be shut down.

He is for stronger police laws, more military action, compulsory labor arbitration, more vigorous censorship, and the abolition of all obscenity picketing. If possible, he would like to have radio stations prevented from playing rock-and-roll music.

What kind of "freedom" does J. Hawley Smoot really believe in? The freedom to be J. Hawley Smoot, to look like him, dress like him, think like him, believe like him, and get rich like him.

"Hands off" is his motto when the government proposes to restrict in any way his freedom to run a business, manage a property, pay taxes, or engage in any sort of fiscal frolics.

"Hands on" is his motto when he looks at disgust at the antics of criminals, labor leaders, agitators (anybody who wants to change the status quo is by definition an "agitator"), beatniks, dropouts, and all people who want different freedoms than J. Hawley Smoot wants.

It has never occurred to him that maybe the reason no one has paid much attention to his bleats for "freedom" over the last 30 years is that it is perfectly obvious even to a moron that he wants only his kind of freedom.

Not once in all that time has he joined a committee, or signed a petition, that was working for freedom for somebody else — for anybody less affluent, less able to cope with the immensity and complexity of the power structure. If he had, perhaps we could believe him more. Anybody can be for his own kind of freedom; but unless we respect it for those we dislike or disagree with, nobody else will follow us or have faith in us.

Shaw's Lawyers Lose Bid

Garrison Given TV Go-Ahead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — District Judge Edward Hagerty Wednesday ruled District Attorney Jim Garrison could go ahead with an "equal time" report on his Kennedy assassination probe over national television.

Attorneys for Clay Shaw, the man Garrison charged with conspiring to assassinate President Kennedy, asked Hagerty to bar Garrison from the TV appearances.

SATURDAY DATE
The half-hour program is scheduled over NBC Saturday, to allow the district attorney to answer criticism in an NBC special program.

Defence attorneys claimed the program would violate rules prohibiting public discussion of the case in advance of the trial.

Although Hagerty refused to bar Garrison from appearing, he apparently did not rule out the possibility he might find the program a violation of the court rules after he sees what Garrison has to say.

SHAW'S POINT
Attorney Irving Diamond said the showing of the NBC Garrison program in this area could hurt Shaw's chances of getting a fair trial. The 34-year-old former director of the International Trade Mart is awaiting trial on a charge that he conspired with the late David Ferrie and Lee Harvey Oswald to assassinate President Kennedy.

NBC granted Garrison half an hour of equal time after it indicated in a June TV special that Garrison had used questionable tactics to obtain testimony against Shaw.

TWO NEWSMEN
Garrison has filed charges against two newsmen — Richard Townley, who works for New Orleans TV station WDSU and is a prominent NBC commentator, and NBC reporter Walter Sheridan.

The district attorney charged Tuesday that Townley tried to bribe and intimidate his chief of staff, Perry Raymond Russo, and also attempted to intimidate Marlene Mancuso, the former wife of witness Gordon Novel.

BONDS POSTED
Townley posted a $2,500 bond on each of the three charges. The station WDSU denied Garrison's claim that it was trying to obstruct his probe.

Last Friday, Garrison's office charged Sheridan with "public bribery" of Russo. The NBC, in a statement

INMATE CITED
In another New Orleans development Wednesday, John Canaler was cited for contempt after refusing to answer a question from a grand jury investigating the Kennedy slaying.

Canaler refused to verify a statement he made to the NBC last month. He told NBC in a taped interview a member of Garrison's staff had asked him if he could break into and place something in Shaw's apartment.

Creel Pleases Royal Fisherman

FREDERICTON (CP) — To the skill of bagpipers, Queen Mother Elizabeth II inspected a Black Watch review at nearby Canadian Forces Base Gagetown Wednesday.

Sitting in an open car, the 66-year-old Queen Mother watched as the car drove slowly along the line of piped soldiers while the regimental band played the traditional Scottish melody, "Road to the Isles."

Strikers Hold Off For Opening

HALIFAX (CP) — Striking bricklayers confirmed Wednesday they will not picket Dalhousie University's new medical school when it is opened Friday by Queen Mother Elizabeth II.

The bricklayers threatened Tuesday to throw a plant line around the Sir Charles Tupper medical building. Officials had considered moving the ceremony to a downtown theatre or cancelling them.

TELEGRAM

Labour Minister McLaughlin announced that there would be no picketing by bricklayers or plumbers, also on strike. Albert Vincent, international representative of the bricklayers union here, said in a telegram to co-ordinators of the royal visit that the workers "do not intend to picket Sir Charles Tupper medical building during the royal visit." He did not elaborate.

Colonel-in-chief of the Black Watch — the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada — she presented the Queen's colors to the regiment five years ago in Montreal.

During the hour-long ceremony the Queen's colors and the regimental colors were paraded before her while about 1,100 soldiers performed a slow march. During the first hour, she spent in Fredericton earlier in the day, the Queen Mother was given a conservative but warm welcome.

A keen angler, she said the gift made her long to get out on one of New Brunswick's famous rivers and do some fishing. Officials have been trying to fit in a fishing trip for the Queen Mother but her schedule is too busy.

The yacht was scheduled to leave just before midnight Wednesday for St. Andrews, N.B., which the Queen Mother will visit today before spending an afternoon on Campbell Island in Passamaquoddy Bay.

TV TALK

By BRUCE LOWTHER

Bonanza is running scared. The longtime leader in U.S. network ratings was hit hard this past season by the Smothers Brothers, and may be old age as well, and will start its ninth season with big changes.

Executive producer David Dortort has issued a miles-long statement yacking about actor David Canary, 23, who is joining the Ponderosa regulars as a tough and truculent loser named Candy. Far more important is a hidden paragraph in which Dortort says Bonanza will go outside the studio much more this coming year and has "an almost completely new staff of writers and directors."

I doubt that there's much Bonanza can do. It's tired, like Gunsmoke, and that's becoming obvious. The Smothers can't miss if they can keep up the pace. Their show is the only entertainment vehicle around that feels the feelings of youth delectable to adults, and palatable, too.

SPECIAL NOTE: Channel 8 will show the Calgary Stampede parade at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. It won't be on Channel 6.

Courtroom Parade

A Willson Road inmate, who was scheduled to be released June 6, was convicted in central magistrate's court Wednesday of assaulting a prison guard — his second such conviction in two months.

Patrick Murphy, who was sentenced in Kamloops in February to four months for theft, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by Magistrate William Oeder for assaulting guard Harry Hudson.

Murphy had been sentenced to 18 months in jail May 17 for assaulting guard Thomas Day.

CLEARING WING

Guard Hudson said he was clearing the upper wing at the prison Tuesday afternoon for group counselling and Murphy remained in his cell. He went into Murphy's cell and then followed him down the prison cells.

"He said to me 'all guards are dirty bastards' and then made a jump at me," Mr. Hudson said. "He grabbed me around the legs and I pushed him off."

The pair wrestled and Murphy hit the guard on the side of the head and they exchanged blows, court was told.

CORNERED

"Finally I got him cornered against the bars of a cell and another guard came to my assistance," Mr. Hudson said.

"When I was holding him against the bars he said he would kill me and he tried to gouge out my eyes."

Constable Joseph Rivard, who came to Mr. Hudson's assistance, told Murphy that he did not see his fellow guard assume a boxer's stance and say to Murphy "come on."

BAD HUMOR

Murphy told the court that as he was going down the stairs he said to the guard: "I think you people need the group counselling more than anyone."

"He called me some kind of a puke, I was in a bad humor to begin with. I turned around and he punched me in the nose."

Murphy said he then hit the guard "a couple of times" and the guard bit him on the left hand.

"He was responsible for it (the fight) in the first place," Murphy said.

A 36-year-old man walked out of a Johnson Street cafe at about 12:15 a.m. Wednesday, raised a case of beer over his head and smashed it to the ground.

He then kicked a garbage can and screamed. Constable Walter Sagert went to calm him down and was kicked and punched for his trouble.

Francis Holden, 38, no fixed address, pleaded guilty to assaulting a peace officer and to causing a disturbance. He was remanded to Friday for psychiatric report and sentence.

RECORD

Prosecutor John MacIntyre said Holden was convicted of assaulting a peace officer and causing a disturbance on March 23. He has also been convicted this year of vagrancy, causing a disturbance and intoxication.

Mr. MacIntyre said Holden "apparently has a history of mental disturbances."

Holden told the court he had been released from jail Saturday and that he had not received any mental treatment in jail.

George Williams, 44, approached a man outside the Government Street liquor store Monday night and asked for 20 cents.

The man was Sgt. James Baxter of the city forces who was off-duty at the time.

"I told him I was a prison officer and told him he had got on his way," Sgt. Baxter said. "He insisted I move on. I then called Constable (Brian) Bailey."

Williams was found guilty of committing vagrancy by begging and was placed on a $100 bond for six months. He told the court he had never "pan-handled" before and had no memory of the offence.

Terence Scott, 2832 Douglas, was fined $250 and had his licence suspended for driving while under suspension.

Fined in traffic court for careless driving: Paul Singh Bains, 1075 Goldstream, $35; Brian Cunningham, 989 London-derry, $35; David King, 1706 Kingsbury, $35.

To Vietnam

More Men Going

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, just back from Vietnam, told President Johnson Wednesday more U.S. military men will have to be sent there.

But he stressed no need to call up the reserves.

"I'm not sure how many more troops will have to be sent to the embattled country," McNamara added in telling reporters of his 90-minute White House conference.

He said he is not prepared to say when a decision will be made whether it will be necessary to raise the current authorized strength of 480,000 Americans in Vietnam. He put the total there now at 450,000 to 460,000.

But 20,000 to 30,000 more men probably will be sent to Vietnam in the next 90 days, McNamara said. These will merely fill out the authorized ceiling.

Before any decision is made to raise that ceiling, the defence chief said, there will be consultations with U.S. allies.

Asked if this means the United States is going to ask its allies to increase their troops in Vietnam, McNamara said it means there will be discussions of the troop problem. He said these consultations will be direct in Washington and in the countries involved.

CIVILIAN SUPPORT
He said Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff who attended Wednesday's session, agrees with him about the reserves.

On the manpower problem, the secretary said, he believes there can be some substitution of civilian support forces to better utilize military forces. In that context, he mentioned construction personnel.

$65,000 Statue

Toppled at Expo

MONTREAL (CP) — Angry officials at Expo 67's Olympic House Wednesday criticized security forces for what they called a lack of surveillance in the damaging of a valuable Finnish statue.

The 1,400-pound statue of Finnish runner Paavo Nurmi, a 1920s Olympic star, was found Wednesday lying beside its base outside the front door of the $750,000 pavilion. The statue was broken in two places.

A pavilion official said in an interview:

"We have had flags stolen and halyards cut but our complaints to Expo security got no action. So we stopped leaving out flags at night."

"This damage to the statue could have been caused by vandalism and Expo security seems unable to protect us."

The statue, considered a Finnish national monument, is insured for $65,000 and was loaned by the City of Helsinki for exhibition at Expo.

XYZs of Health May Cause Heart Attack

From AP, UPI

BRISTOL, England — Yes, you can die of a broken heart. And if your last name begins with the letters between X and Z you are twice as likely to get ulcers and three times more prone to heart attacks.

These were the findings in two reports submitted Wednesday to the British Medical Association.

Dr. C. Murray Parks, of the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations, said a study in which he had been involved shows a relationship between bereavement and heart disease. Out of 4,511 men who had lost their wives, 241 died within six months of the bereavement — 71 from coronary thrombosis or arteriosclerotic heart disease, the research psychiatrist said.

A doctor whose last name begins with W reported on "alcoholic neurasthenia," which, he said, was due to the strain of waiting for your name to be called. The amount of neurasthenia in the S-Z group, Dr. Trevor Weston said, is 50 per cent higher than the A-R block.

"It is clear that the strain of all this waiting for your name to be reached — of always being last — renders us more liable to become morose and intrusive," the hospital consultant said.

Weston said the neurasthenia shortens life for the group by 17 years compared with the others.

Violence Grows

In Hong Kong

On Fourth Night

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communist mobs raged through Hong Kong Wednesday night, burning buses and cars and attacking police. Police fought back with shotguns and tear gas, killing one rioter and wounding several others.

It was the most violent outbreak in four days of anti-government rioting in this British colony on the doorstep of China.

which backs the local Communists. The colonial government announced severe water rationing because China has not yet announced it will resume its sales of water to the colony. Some mobs began breaking open water pipes and let the precious water flow down gutters.

The night of terror came on the heels of a statement by Hong Kong's colonial secretary, D. R. Holmes, that "Hong Kong may well be entering a new phase of terrorism."

Leftist crowds started their rampage in Kowloon, the Chi-

On Paper

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John Lindsay spent an hour touring Harlem Wednesday and made a special point of inspecting the streets and gutters for trash.

Three times, the mayor bent to pick up discarded paper. The third time he did so, an aide took the paper from him. The aide passed it to another person, who passed it to another and it eventually ended up in the hands of a small child who threw it back in the gutter.

To Roll Israel Back

RUSSIA URGES UN SANCTIONS

From Reuters, AP, UPI and LAT

Israel Wednesday night faced the threat of censure and Security Council-imposed sanctions as the United Nations mounted new pressure to force her to give up the Old City of Jerusalem.

In a strong attack on the Israeli position, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko urged that the council apply sanctions "to liquidate Israeli aggression" and pledged Soviet support for such a measure.

On the Suez Canal, artillery and tanks of Egypt and Israel blazed away at each other after a night naval battle during which the Israelis claimed they sank two Egyptian torpedo boats.

SENT ORDERS
In New York, Secretary-General U Thant told the Security Council he has sent orders for the posting "without delay" of as many UN military observers as possible along the canal.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban met Wednesday night's challenge by declaring in the General Assembly that his government would "pursue a serene and patient dialogue" to ensure that Jerusalem remained unified and that access to the holy places is open to all faiths.

DOMINANT ISSUE
Israel's takeover of the city, formerly divided into Israeli and Jordanian sectors, was the dominant issue as the assembly resumed its emergency debate after a week's recess for private consultations among delegations.

Palestine, which spearheaded a resolution last week declaring invalid Israeli measures for absorbing Jerusalem and calling for their amendment, revived the question Wednesday with the submission of a further draft.

This would have the assembly deplore Israel's failure to heed the assembly's appeal and put the matter before the Security Council.

Nigeria Claims Victory

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigeria's federal government announced Wednesday night capture of the key eastern town of Oyoja and said it killed 2,000 troops in the battle against the self-proclaimed Biafra Republic.

The announcement said three battalions of secessionist troops were wiped out. Oyoja is the capital of Oyoja province. Federal forces earlier claimed the capture of several places in the northern part of Oyoja province.

Federal sources here Wednesday indicated the federal army's northern battalions were staging an all-out effort to capture Nukku, strategically situated 41 miles north of the breakaway eastern region's capital of Enugu.

The secessionist Radio Biafra, heard here, confirmed that Nukku was at the centre of continued bitter fighting.

It conceded an initial setback for secessionist forces but claimed to have contained a Nigerian Army onslaught launched against Nukku Monday.

Shipyard Mob Routed

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (UPI) — State police using nightsticks and riot dogs moved in on a crowd of 1,000 jeering, bottle-throwing demonstrators Wednesday night trying to clear them from the front gates of the steel-bound Newport News shipbuilding and Drydock Co.

Bottles flew through the air and firecrackers exploded as the troops and six marling police dogs forced the crowd to break into several side streets leading to the main entrance to the world's largest privately owned shipyard.

One man fell through a plate glass window in a small store, but the injured man was taken away, blood streaming from small cuts. Several persons were hit by nightsticks in the second night of violence at the shipyard.

The trouble started when the crowd began advancing on the helmeted troopers after a loud-speaker warned them to "disperse by order of the state police."

'I'll Die Greek!'

Greece Purges 'Anti' Actress

Mercouri

NEW YORK (AP) — Greece's military dictatorship snatched away actress Melina Mercouri's citizenship and Greek property Wednesday, charging her with "anti-national" activities.

"I was born Greek; I will die Greek," Miss Mercouri responded, angrily branding the government "fascist."

"I will speak out loud and clear. I will talk to the people. I will sing songs they are not allowed to sing. I will help them be free again."

The announcement that Miss Mercouri and eight others had lost their citizenship and property was made in Athens by Brig. Stylianos Patsalos, interior minister. The other eight included politicians, writers and a radio announcer, all of whom fled their country after the April 21 military coup.

Much of Miss Mercouri's "anti-national" activity was the criticism she directed at Greece placed by the ruling military junta against some Greek songs and plays. She was forbidden to perform the works of Aristophanes, she said, or to sing the songs of Mikis Theodorakis, composer of Zorba the Greek.

The loss of her citizenship, she said, cleared the way for her to speak out with complete freedom.

Miss Mercouri, 42, appeared shocked and upset as she told a news conference that she wanted the military junta out of power but did not want civil war.

Sniper Case

Mental Review Advised

VANCOUVER (CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday said Arthur John Towell, 35, was responsible for two sniper deaths last Thursday and then recommended wide legislative revisions to prevent a repetition of the tragedy. (See also Page 2.)

The jury recommended:

● A review of committal procedures for mentally ill people in connection with physicians following up cases.

● Legislation for a medical review board to which doctors and social workers could refer all instances of mental illness.

● Powers for police to refuse applications for hand gun licences and to revoke existing permits with a reasonable right for appeal.

Towell is scheduled to appear in magistrate's court today on two charges of capital murder in the deaths of David and Marlene Webster and two charges of attempted murder.

Jordan Excluded From Arab Meet

BEIRUT (UPI) — The four most warring Arab states will get together for a summit conference in Cairo today, and pointedly exclude the kingdom of Jordan from the meeting.

Jordan's King Hussein has been pleading ever since the Middle East war for summit talks by the rulers of all the Arab countries.

But the authoritative Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said Wednesday that a meeting would be held in the Egyptian capital of the presidents of Syria, Egypt, Iraq and Algeria.

Investigators Accuse Mississippi

A Plan for Genocide

BOSTON (AP) — Two civil rights investigators, just back from a 1,700-mile tour of the Mississippi Delta, supported testimony Wednesday from six doctors in Washington that Mississippi is trying to drive or starve out its Negroes.

"Mississippi has a plan of genocide," Alex Waites, a New York official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told a news conference. "It has determined it is going to get rid of as many Negroes as possible."

Rollie Eubanks, the other investigator, said: "In our judgment, the things they are doing about Mississippi are not only true but worse than true."

The two men have prepared a report for consideration by the NAACP convention calling for a federal law so that "no state can wilfully jeopardize the health and welfare of its residents."

Six doctors, testifying before a Senate subcommittee Tuesday, said their investigation showed Mississippi to be "a kind of prison for poor Negroes containing a great group of uneducated, semi-starving people from whom all but token public support has been withdrawn."

Waites said he and Eubanks, both Negroes, saw swollen bellies of children who are limited by poverty to starch-only diets.

"You see these pot bellies all over the place. They are hungry but their stomachs are full."

Fishermen, Boat Owners Both Gain by New Pact

By GEORGE INGLIS

The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union gained ground Wednesday in its protracted dispute with trawl boat owners, as the vessel owners' association signed an agreement previously ratified by union members.

Under the agreement, which has kept trawlers of the B.C. Fishing Vessel Owners' Association tied up since March 17:

Labor Airs Feud

resolve a bitter dispute between the British Columbia Federation of Labor and four locals of the International Woodworkers of America will be made later this month.

Ray Haynes, federation secretary, said Wednesday a vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress will attend a Vancouver meeting on the feud.

The four IWA locals — Vancouver, Victoria, Duncan and the lumber inspectors — were suspended by the federation for refusing to publicly apologize for a scathing attack on CLC executive vice-president Joe Morris.

Mr. Haynes said a definite date for the summit session has not been set.

The IWA has threatened that unless the federation revokes the suspensions, the entire 30,000 members of the IWA in B.C. will withdraw from the federation.

Painter Wins $2,000

Sidney painter Michael Morris has been awarded a $2,000 prize in the centennial art competition, Perspective '67.

Mr. Morris, 25, lived at 2287 Beacon before moving to a teaching post at Simon Fraser University in Burnaby.

The painter studied in Vancouver and at the Slade School in London on a Canada Council scholarship. He was awarded a one-man show at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria in December, 1965.

Workmen's compensation and unloading costs will now be taken off the gross stock, a double gain for the union.

Vessel owners will receive a flat 40 per cent of the catch, a gain for the owners.

DRAMATIC GAIN

The compensation item represents a dramatic gain, since it means all fishermen now will be covered when they go to sea, and the vessel owners will be sharing the cost. Until this agreement was signed, the fishermen were regarded as "co-adventurers" and provided their own compensation.

This resulted in more than one instance, in a fisherman going to sea and being drowned while not covered by compensation — working a hardship on widows and families.

The unloading charges coming off gross stock means the vessel owner contributes to the unloading. The owners wanted this to come off net stock, after the vessel's share had been deducted.

MORE FOR OWNERS

The flat 40-per-cent share of the catch, after some expenses have been taken off the top, gives the larger boat owners 34 per cent that was taken away in the lucrative dogfish days, when larger crews reaped rich harvests.

Only one Victoria-based boat, the Ocean Traveller owned by Frank Gale, is in the association and will be directly affected by the agreement.

About three other independents will be affected in Victoria. There are about 18 association boats and several independents in the Vancouver area.

No Prince Rupert boats are in the Vancouver-based association, so the dispute there will be unaffected by the agreement. The likelihood, however, is that the independents will go along with the association. This is the first agreement signed by the B.C. trawl vessels with the union.

Chrysler Gets Demands

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers union Wednesday gave its new contract demands to Chrysler and presented GM with its first position paper on the main item, a guaranteed annual income. The demands were given to GM Monday and Ford Tuesday.

The UAW told GM the income should allow the worker "to maintain his normal living standard for a period of time, graduated according to his length of service, up to a full year."

Duncan Council

Seeds Force Search for Other Pastures

Alex

DUNCAN—The playing field at Wharnclyffe Road Park will not be ready for sports clubs to play on for at least another year because it has been freshly seeded.

The city's recreation commission has been asked to find other areas for the clubs to conduct their sports events.

Ald. Jim Saunders suggested the possibility of using temporary playing areas at the Fairbridge School and Ald. Martin LaSalle recommended more extensive use of playing fields at Cowichan District schools.

"They all belong to the people, why not use them?"

"There are 102 acres of playing fields."

Mayor Jack Dobson replied, "I don't think the school board would oppose it. The city will operate with the board when the school is built at Wharnclyffe Park."

SEPTEMBER OPENING

In other business, council has learned preparations for the opening of the $4,500,000 Cowichan District Hospital on September 15 are progressing well.

It was advised by Ald. Homer Alex that more radar control should be carried out on Trunk Road which he described as a race track and a potential death scene because of reckless speeders. Council decided to push the Highways Department into installing a traffic light near the Duncan Shopping Plaza where soon a new, large supermarket is to open.

Motorists getting a ticket in Duncan for overparking may soon be able to pay their fines by dropping the money into special boxes to be placed in the downtown area.

The suggestion has been made by the city's traffic committee.

CAUTION TICKETS

They stated, "We would like to introduce caution tickets similar to those issued by the city of New Westminster. One is for out-of-province tourists and the other is for parking violations during the Christmas season."

"Our library at Duncan really does a terrific job," Ald. Bernie Cocks has commented.

A total of 9,877 books were circulated during June, 400 less than in May because of the holiday season and warm weather.

BOOKWORMS

He said, "On March 25 we had the largest one-day circulation in the history of the library with 1,124 books. June 30 we had the second largest with 1,025 books."

Ald. Cocks also reported that welfare assistance paid during the month of June was $6,536 to 31 families with 84 dependents; 26 single men, 11 single women, one child with relatives and four boarding home cases.

Oysters Okay, Red Tide Gone

Health and fisheries authorities Wednesday cleared oysters in the Gulf of Georgia of the red tide poisoning menace.

However, a warning that clams may contain the toxic agent remains in effect. The area involved stretches from Seymour Narrows in the north to Active Pass in the south.

Duncan Ready

"Oysters in the area have been sampled and no toxicity has been found," said a spokesman for the provincial health department.

He added that commercial oyster-growers have been informed and he expected they soon would resume the operations they suspended two weeks ago.

DUNCAN—The first step on major flood control work must be made by the federal and provincial governments before Duncan will participate, Ald. Jim Saunders has said.

"We are ready at any time as soon as they step forward and bear the main amount of the total cost," he said.

His comments followed a letter from the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce in which the city was asked to follow up a detailed flood control survey by the water rights branch.

The chamber will be told that the city will have representation at a meeting at Victoria this fall.

Shellfish containing a high concentration of the red tide toxin can be fatal to humans. The poisoning starts out with a numbness in the fingers and lips, which gradually spreads to gross paralysis.

Gonyaulax catenella, the microscopic organism that causes the trouble, becomes dangerous when it starts reproducing rapidly at certain periods of the summer.

It does not harm the shellfish.

Time for Tax Bite

DUNCAN—The Friendly City of the Cowichan Valley is becoming even friendlier. To aid its taxpaying citizens, council contemplates a monthly time-payment plan for taxes. There was no protest when Mayor Jack Dobson announced the method Monday night. During the past 30 years a charge of 10 per cent was levied on unpaid taxes as of July 1 each year, but city fathers agreed the tax load is becoming too cumbersome. The 10 per cent penalty is mandatory by municipal act for taxes not paid by the end of the year but municipalities use their own method as to how high the penalty is during the last six months of each year.

More launchings are planned this year, but definite dates are not yet available.

tion isn't fiction and it wasn't lifted from the Police Gazette.

It happened in Victoria and was a caution — if crusty — headline on the front page of The Daily Colonist.

The paper, dated Feb. 5, 1925, was resurrected Wednesday from an old home being demolished in Victoria.

Next to the crashed-fireman story is a short article reporting that Vancouverites were preparing for another Tong War.

CHINESE FACTION

Apparently 30 members of one Chinese faction met "behind closed doors" to draw 10 white beans and one black bean. Whoever got the black bean also got $5,000, a revolver and the name and address of a man to be rubbed out.

Locally, Bachmanoff was to appear at the Royal Theatre and Victorians could watch for it.

An ad for cars has an Essex-4 for sale at $1,500.

LITERARY SECTION

In a literary section, near the back of the paper, there is an in-depth article by a noted woman author, entitled, The Philandering Husband — If he flirts, so will I.

But the next headline, sensibly says, This instinctive procedure on the part of the wife is, without doubt, quite the most foolish.

The paper was found by Derek Sperring and Bob Blumason, both Victoria high Grade 12 students, in an Alpha Street home belonging to Bob Young of Victoria.

Shadows Design Patterns

San pouring through canopy of city tonight information centre on Douglas forms intriguing shadow patterns on sidewalk — and passersby are unaware of fact they are part of design. Photograph was taken from top of custom home, also on Douglas, with 400-mm telephoto lens, at western line of day Wednesday afternoon. — (William E. John)

Alderman Pushes Civil Defence

Trained Force Essential

Recently returned from a two-week civil defence course in Ontario, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow says he is "completely sold" on the need for every city to have a force trained to meet disaster.

"Like a lot of other people I was pretty apathetic until I took the course at Annapolis," he said Wednesday.

"But I am convinced now that every community should have a group of men and women highly trained to handle communications, transport and administration in the event of disaster.

"I'm not talking about disaster in the nuclear bomb sense but natural disaster which can strike any community," the alderman observed.

Referring to the tidal wave which struck the Alberta coast several years ago, Ald. Edgelow added:

ONE EACH BLOCK

"At the time of the disaster the Albertans were not too interested in an emergency measures organization but they sure are now. Natural disaster could strike Victoria or any other community and I would like to think we were ready to meet it if and when it came.

"Before the end of the month I intend to meet city and provincial officials to see what I can do to stir up some interest.

"My idea would be to have one person in every city block trained to act in the event of emergency. And there is no reason why that target should not be achieved if council will take the lead in encouraging public interest.

"I am prepared to instruct, myself, if we can just get classes going," the alderman said.

Wingless Plane On Way

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—A wingless plane designed to take a test pilot 100,000 feet high and plummet him down to a pinpoint landing has been turned over to the U.S. Air Force.

The craft, called a lifting body because its lift comes not from wings but from the shape of the body, was delivered Tuesday by the Martin Marietta Co.

The air force and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration hope to find out in test flights during the next two years if the wingless planes can be used in manned space flight.

Lt. Gen. Charles H. Terhune Jr., vice commander of the air force systems command who accepted the craft from the company, said the use of lifting bodies could reduce the cost of space travel by doing away with the "need for complex launching facilities, expendable booster systems and vast recovery forces."

The Martin plane, designated the X-24A, is one of three wingless craft to be tested by the air force and NASA. It was built for the air force at a cost of $3,500,000, including testing.

It is intended as a research vehicle and there are no plans for it to achieve the speed needed to put it into orbit.

Six-Day Blast Starts Friday

By JIM BOFFMAN

Twenty-five Canadian, American and Japanese warships are converging on Victoria to give the city a big six-day blast, starting Friday.

The spectacular Centennial Naval Assembly program will rock the city with gunfire and the roar of the Golden Centennaires in a breath-taking aerobatic display over the Royal Roads area Wednesday.

On Saturday, ranks from the three national forces will offer the largest international parade ever held here, beginning at 10 a.m.

MED-CITY

The parade starts on Chatham Street, between Douglas and Government, goes south on Douglas to Yates, west on Yates to Government, and south on Government to Superior to disband.

On Saturday and Sunday all ships will be open to visitors from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. A naval band concert will be held at Beacon Hill Park Monday evening.

Wednesday, July 19, is the big day with most of the action.

FLEET REVIEW

At 9:30 a.m., Lieutenant-Governor Peartree will board the Canadian auxiliary vessel Endeavour at the CPR wharf in the Inner Harbor to review the fleet.

A 15-gun co-ordinated salute will be fired by HMCS Mackenzie, USS King and JMSDF Teruaki at 10:25 a.m.

The fleet review commences at 10:30 a.m. Lieutenant-Governor Peartree will pass through the five lines of ships massed off the Royal Roads anchorage. As he passes each ship, officers and crew will wave caps and give three cheers.

SHIPBOARD LUNCH

At 11:30 a.m., flag officers and commanding officers of participating ships attend a luncheon aboard CNAV Endeavour.

At 12:30 p.m. the Endeavour

will proceed to HMC Dockyard where the lieutenant-governor will leave the ship for Government House.

The dazzling grace of the Golden Centennaires will delight Victorians as the jets perform their 45-minute aerobatic display over the Royal Roads area in the evening at 8:30 p.m.

When dark falls, the ships will black out, then flick on lights at 10 p.m. for a nighttime illumination followed by a fireworks display at 10:15 p.m.

The ships will leave the Royal Roads area the next morning, with a midpost off the water-front beginning at 9:30 a.m., as they proceed to Vancouver for another assembly.

Among the Canadian ships are five destroyer escorts, HMCS Mackenzie, Yukon, Qu'Appelle, St. Croix and Columbia, and ships including the RCMP motor launch Victoria, the coast guard weather ship Quendra and naval auxiliary vessels.

Three American destroyers, the USS King, Chevalier, and Black, the assault ship Vancouver and the coast guard ship Yaquina will form the American delegation.

From Japan will be the destroyers JDS Teruaki, Tokitsuki, Maratsune and Shikisumi.

Hospitality Offered To Visiting Sailors

Response already has been good from Victorians calling the Dockyard to act as hosts for Japanese and U.S. sailors.

About 2,500 visiting sailors and officers will be in town from Friday to Wednesday for centennial naval assembly.

Assembly officials are anxious that Victorians will entertain the guests from either navy in their homes.

The number to call is the Dockyard at 383-8221, extension 533, 321 or 517, between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m.

Open Saanich Meeting

Animals Bylaw Ready Tuesday

Saanich's revised animals bylaw, the product of four months' work by the municipal planning department, will be unveiled at a special committee meeting next week.

The meeting of lands and planning committee will be held Tuesday night.

The revised bylaw incorporates many of the suggestions offered by citizens after the first draft was prepared earlier this year. Saanich received about 150 letters with recommendations for the control of animals.

Creel Pleases Royal Fisherman

FREDERICTON (CP) — To the skirt of bagpipes, Queen Mother Elizabeth II inspected a Black Watch review at nearby Canadian Forces Base Gagetown Wednesday.

Sitting in an open car, the 66-year-old Queen Mother watched as the car drove slowly along the lines of khaki soldiers while the regimental band played the traditional Scottish melody, Road to the Isles.

Strikers Hold Off For Opening

HALIFAX (CP) — Striking bricklayers confirmed Wednesday they will not picket Dalhousie University's new medical school when it is opened Friday by Queen Mother Elizabeth II.

The bricklayers threatened Tuesday to throw a picket line around the Sir Charles Tupper medical building. Officials had considered moving the ceremony to a downtown theatre or cancelling them.

TELEGRAM — Labor Minister McKenough announced that there would be no picketing by bricklayers or by plumbers, also on strike.

Albert Vincent, international representative of the bricklayers union here, said in a telephone call to the workers "do not intend to picket Sir Charles Tupper medical building during the royal visit." He did not state when the strike would end.

Colonel-in-chief of the Black Watch — the Royal Highland Regiment of Canada — she presented the Queen's colors to the regiment five years ago in Montreal.

During the hour — long ceremony the Queen's colors and the regimental colors were paraded before her while about 1,100 soldiers performed a slow march.

During the few hours she spent in Fredericton earlier in the day, the Queen Mother was given a conservative but warm welcome.

Thousands lined her route through the city under skies at first overcast, then partly cloudy.

Earlier, at a provincial government luncheon at the University of New Brunswick, the Queen Mother held up her hands in delight when Premier Louis J. Robichaud presented her with a fishing creel.

A keen angler, she said the gift made her long to get out on one of New Brunswick's famous rivers and do some fishing. Officials have been trying to fit in a fishing trip for the Queen Mother but her schedule is too busy.

After the ceremony at Gagetown she attended a garden party given by the Black Watch Regiment before returning by air to Saint John, where she boarded the royal yacht Britannia.

The yacht was scheduled to leave just before midnight Wednesday for St. Andrews, N.B., where the Queen Mother will visit today before spending an afternoon on Campobello Island in Passamaquoddy Bay.

Remedial Class This Fall

By BILL STAVDAL

The Saanich school district's first class for emotionally-disturbed children will open this fall at McTavish elementary school.

The class, under care of a specially trained teacher, will aim at returning its 15 pupils to the regular classrooms.

Nora Lindsay, chairman of the Saanich school board, said Tuesday the project is part of the board's policy of coping with special learning problems "to reduce human wastage."

Early age. "If we can reach them at an early age with a remedial program, it will prevent aggravation of their problems and school dropouts later on."

In a report to the board, district superintendent F. A. McLellan said:

"This class will be made up of pupils who have been carefully screened by the special counselor so that they can receive special treatment for moderate emotional disturbance."

"It was found that the emotional disturbance of these youngsters was not sufficiently serious to justify their inclusion in Seven Oaks School (a private institution for disturbed youngsters)."

Lifesaver Tested

Using one of the first inhalator "bottles" in B.C., Saanich lifeguard Maurice Preece, who patrols swimmers at south end of Elk Lake, tested newly-installed emergency communication system Tuesday. Phones are in boxes at Elk and Beaver Lakes and are meant only for inhalator calls.

Vagrant Tells Police He'd Kill to Get Funds

A man found sleeping on a bench on Douglas Street near Yates at 4:35 a.m. Tuesday told police he would have no hesitation in killing to get money.

George Chismard, 36, no fixed address, pleaded guilty in central magistrate's court Tuesday to vagrancy and was remanded to Thursday for sentence.

Could get gun. "He said he would have no hesitation taking a person's life to get money," Mr. MacIntyre said. "He said he knew where to get a gun in Victoria."

He said in court he was not intimidated when he spoke to police, and he was sane. Magistrate William Ostler asked if he was serious that he would kill to get money.

"It's been done before," was the reply.

Bad Chequers Busy in Town

By BRIAN DOHERTY

The paper hangers are busy in Victoria. In the first six months of this year, they have prepared the city with $14,744.50 in bad cheques.

A paper hanger is a bad cheque artist, a man (or woman) who writes cheques on non-existent or empty bank accounts.

So far this year, there have been 227 reports to the city detectives of bad cheques of one type or other. In the first six months of last year there were 156 cases reported involving $7,775.70.

These are the reported cases. Many are never reported to the police by embarrassed merchants.

Doubled in 1967. Det.-Insp. William Andrews said Tuesday he was alarmed at the increase in cheque offences this year.

"We are always trying to assist merchants in every way to stop this practice," he said. "But, as the figures show, it has doubled this year."

Last year the total of bad cheques written in the city was just over $19,000. In a few months, at the going rate, this will be passed.

Suggestions. The city police have listed suggestions for merchants to cash cheques by strangers.

They suggest a careful examination of the cheques to ensure the name of the bank, branch and city are on it, that the written portion and figures agree and that no part of the face of the cheque has been altered.

Account numbers. Do not cash a post-dated cheque, they say, and make sure the account number is filled in on a personal cheque.

They stress obtaining sample identification. If possible get an identification card containing a photograph, signature and description.

Ask questions. If a driver's license is presented, compare signatures and, if in doubt, ask a few questions and compare the answers with information on the licence.

Details of identification should be put on the back of the cheque and obtain home address and telephone number, police say.

More questions. The merchant should ask the place of employment and telephone to verify the information, and look up the number himself.

"If the person is driving an auto, try to obtain the licence number," the warning says. "Have the person endorse the cheque in your presence, whether or not it is already signed."

Convention Setup Near City Hall?

By A. H. MURPHY

City council may be convened in the next two weeks to consider locating the city's new convention centre in a multi-million-dollar commercial complex across Douglas Street from City Hall, the Colonist learned Tuesday.

It has been known for more than a year that developers have been assembling land in the city block bounded by Pandora, Blanshard, Cormorant and Douglas, with the object of building a multi-million-dollar shopping mall type of commercial development.

Includes skyscraper. It would include a skyscraper, 20 or more stories high, facing on Blanshard, and another tower further west in the complex.

The original concept envisaged shops along Pandora and Cormorant, with an arcade and mall in the centre.

The lower on Blanshard would be principally residential, with commercial areas on the lower floors.

Although confirmation could not be obtained at City Hall, it was learned a special meeting of the mayor's special convention centre committee may be held to consider the commercial proposition, one of several which have been included in convention centre discussions over the past year.

It was stated Tuesday this report would be ready for city council at its meeting July 27.

It was expected to make a recommendation for a site and to detail more specifically other considerations, such as the possible cost to the city of a centre.

Other sites mentioned as possible locations have been the area in the vicinity of Memorial Arena, the waterfront land now occupied by Ocean Cement Ltd., and the block west of Centennial Square.

Mayor Hugh Stephen named a special committee headed by Ald. Percy Frampton, to make further studies and report to city council.

More Men Going

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara, just back from Vietnam, told President Johnson Wednesday more U.S. military men will have to be sent there.

But McNamara said he did not see the need to call up the reserves.

"I'm not sure how many more troops will have to be sent to the embattled country," McNamara added in telling reporters of his 30-minute White House conference.

He said he is not prepared to say when a decision will be made whether it will be necessary to raise the current authorized strength of 480,000 Americans in Vietnam. He put the total there now at 450,000 to 460,000.

But 20,000 to 30,000 more men probably will be sent to Vietnam in the next 90 days, McNamara said. These will mostly fill out the authorized ceiling.

Before any decision is made to raise that ceiling, the defence chief said, there will be consultations with U.S. allies.

Asked if this means the United States is going to ask its allies to increase their troops in Vietnam, McNamara said it means there will be discussions of the troop problem. He said these consultations will be direct in Washington and in the countries involved.

CIVILIAN SUPPORT
He said Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff who attended Wednesday's session, agreed with him about the reserves.

On the manpower problem, the secretary said, he believes there can be some substitution of civilian support forces to better utilize military forces. In that context, he mentioned construction personnel.

U.S. Blamed

PEKING (Reuters) — China charged Wednesday that four United States Air Force Thunderbolts fired two guided missiles at Chinese frontier guards Wednesday, injuring four soldiers and damaging a house.

The 1,400-pound statue of Finnish runner Paavo Nurmi, a 1908 Olympic star, was found Wednesday lying inside its base outside the front door of the $750,000 pavilion. The statue was broken in two places.

A pavilion official said in an interview: "We have had flags stolen and halyards cut but our complaints to Expo security got no action. So we stopped leaving our flags out at night."

"This damage to the statue could have been caused by vandalism and Expo security seems unable to protect us."

The statue, considered a Finnish national monument, is insured for $65,000 and was loaned by the City of Helsinki for exhibition at Expo.

XYZs of Health May Cause Heart Attack

From AP, UPI

BRISTOL, England — Yes, you can die of a broken heart. And if your last name begins with the letters between X and Z you are twice as likely to get ulcers and three times more prone to heart attacks.

These were the findings in two reports submitted Wednesday to the British Medical Association.

Dr. C. Murray Parks, of the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations, said a study in which he had been involved shows a relationship between bereavement and heart disease. Out of 4,511 men who had lost their wives, 241 died within six months of the bereavement — 17 from coronary thrombosis or arteriosclerotic heart disease, the research psychiatrist said.

"It is clear that the strain of all this waiting for your name to be reached — of always being last — renders us more liable to become morose and introspective," the hospital consultant said.

Weston said the neurosis shortens life for the group by 12 years compared with the others.

Violence Grows In Hong Kong On Fourth Night

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communist mobs raged through Hong Kong Wednesday night, burning buses and cars and attacking police. Police fought back with teargas and carbines, killing one rioter and wounding several others.

It was the most violent outbreak in four days of anti-government rioting in this British colony on the doorstep of China.

which backs the local Communists.

The colonial government announced severe water rationing because China has not yet announced it will resume its sale of water to the colony. Some mobs began breaking open water pipes and let the precious water flow down gutters.

The night of terror came on the heels of a statement by Hong Kong's colonial secretary, Dr. R. Holmes, that "Hong Kong may well be entering a new phase of terrorism."

Some British think China's aim may be to take over this colony although it is a prime source of foreign exchange for Peking.

Leftist crowds started their rampage in Kowloon, the Chinese-ruled area.

SANCTIONS THREATENED

From Reuters, AP, UPI and LAT

Israel Wednesday night faced the threat of censure and Security Council-imposed sanctions as the United Nations mounted new pressure to force her to give up the Old City of Jerusalem.

In a strong attack on the Israeli position, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko urged that the council apply sanctions "to liquidate Israeli aggression," and pledged Soviet support for such a measure.

On the East Canal, artillery and tanks of Egypt and Israel blazed away at each other after a night naval battle during which the Israelis claimed they sank two Egyptian torpedo boats.

SENT ORDERS
In New York, Secretary-General U Thant told the Security Council he has sent orders for the posting "without delay" of an UN military observer as possible about the canal.

Israel Foreign Minister Abba Eban met Wednesday night's challenge by declaring in the General Assembly that his government would "pursue a serene and patient dialogue" to ensure that Jerusalem remained unified and that access to the holy places is open to all faiths.

DOMINANT ISSUE
Israel's behavior of the city, formerly divided into Israeli and Jordanian sectors, was the dominant issue in the assembly resumed its emergency debate after a week's recess for private consultations among delegations.

Pakistan, which spearheaded a resolution last week declaring voided Israeli measures for absorbing Jerusalem and calling for their commitment, revived the question Wednesday with the submission of a further draft.

This would have the assembly deplore Israel's failure to heed the assembly's appeal, and put the matter before the Security Council.
